New Chapter Is Expected

Announcement Of New Government Seen Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. policymakers expect a new chapter in the Dominican story to begin shortly with an announcement in Santo Domingo of agreement on a provisional government.

It is understood that President Johnson's newly announced order for a further U. S. paratroop withdrawal is based on an encouraging assessment of the Dominican political outlook as well as on the recent dropoff in shooting incidents.

Shots Fired At Home Of Balaguer

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Three shots were fired early Saturday at the home of former President Joaquin Balaguer, who returned this week from exile to play a political role in his troubled country.

The shots came from a car that sped past the house at 2 a.m. One bullet smashed a glass pane in the front door of the large, Spanish colonial-style house. Two others apparently hit a retaining wall.

A policeman guarding the house said he fired four times at the fleeing car but did not think he hit it. Balaguer said he slept through the shooting and dismissed it as a matter of no importance.

President Johnson and a spokesman for the inter-American force announced the United States will withdraw 1,400 more troops from the Dominican Republic. This will reduce the American force to 10,900 from its peak of 22,000 at the height of the crisis between the rebel regime and the civilian-military junta.

A spokesman for Lt. Gen. Hugo Panasco Alvim, Brazilian commander of the inter-American force, said two battalions from the 82nd Airborne Division will be withdrawn within a week.

There are 1,600 troops in the force from Latin-American countries — 1,200 from Brazil and small units from Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and El Salvador.

"Conditions in the Dominican Republic now permit further withdrawal of U. S. military forces," a brief inter-American force announcement said.

An Organization of American States mediating committee, headed by Ellsworth Bunker of the United States, continued negotiations to set up a provisional government satisfactory to the rival regimes.

Dr. Felix A. Goico, 60, a surgeon, is considered the leading candidate to head the government. Both sides have termed him acceptable. OAS sources said, however, that Goico might wind up with only a cabinet post because he lacks political experience.

Balaguer served as Dominican president during and just after the Rafael L. Trujillo dictatorship, which ended with Trujillo's assassination in 1961. He returned Monday from exile in the United States and announced that he would be a presidential candidate in elections to be held in six to nine months under an OAS peace plan. Observers say Balaguer has major political support.

Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, chief of the civilian-military junta, allowed Balaguer to return under a 72-hour permit to visit his mother, 82, who is seriously ill. Balaguer, 56, has ignored the time limit and it has not been enforced.

Imbert assigned four policemen to guard Balaguer's home and warned him to remain in his house for safety.

Balaguer's home is in the international security zone occupied by inter-American troops. Imbert lives a few blocks away.

No Hangovers At Meet

TORONTO (AP) — Toronto at last has a convention without hangovers — the 10,000 or so members and spouses attending the international conference of Alcoholics Anonymous. One speaker reported a local tavern has a sign welcoming AA delegates.

Viet Cong Guerrillas Lay Mortar Attack On US Base

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas laid down another mortar attack Saturday on a U.S.-South Vietnamese air installation but with little effect, U.S. military officials reported.

The predawn attack took place at Can Tho, South Viet Nam's third largest city, about 80 miles southwest of Saigon. It was the fourth air installation to come under mortar attack since Thursday, when guerrillas slipped past tight defenses to hit the vast air base at Da Nang with a damaging attack.

A U.S. military spokesman said the Viet Cong fired 20 to 30 mortar rounds onto the edge of the field at Can Tho, then lobbed another 10 several hours later, hitting a few outposts 3,000 yards from the air strip. The spokesman reported no casualties and no damage to the air strip.

Government troops responded with mortar fire of their own. Planes at the base took off in search of the guerrillas under the light of flares. By dawn the guerrillas had vanished into the jungles.

South Vietnamese troops began pulling out of a valley near Cheo Reo, reliable sources said. Sharp fighting erupted there earlier in the week and on Friday a mortar attack damaged three U.S. helicopters at the air field. The informants said the troops withdrew apparently in the belief that no further contact with the Viet Cong was imminent. Cheo Reo is 220 miles northwest of Saigon.

Near Da Nang government troops killed six guerrillas who refused to come out of a cave, a U.S. Army spokesman reported.

The spokesman said the Vietnamese unit fired into the cave after the guerrillas tossed out hand grenades, wounding five Vietnamese soldiers and one U.S. Army adviser. A wounded Viet Cong was captured with what the spokesman called intelligence documents in his possession.

The incident occurred on a search and destroy operation by 500 government troops near the village of Tra Khe.

U.S. warplanes continued raids on Communist North Viet Nam.

Spending For Welfare Is Down In June

Pettis County welfare expenditures for all programs showed a marked decrease during June, according to County Director Mrs. Neva F. Hell.

The office reported that $105,945.65 were paid out during June. The total is less $539.41 the amount paid in May.

In addition to cash payments, $317 was spent for dental care and $1,376.46 for drugs.

The county office said aid to the blind and pensions for the blind remained the same in June, with $3,525 paid to 47 persons.

Permanent and total disability payments were the only ones which showed an increase in June. Mrs. Hell said, with $7,903 paid to 117 persons, up $373 over May.

Other categories: Old age assistance, $74,473.65 paid to 1,189 persons, a decrease of $772.41 over May; aid to dependent children, $14,522 paid to 171 families for 482 children, down $74; and general relief, $5,522 paid to 84 families, down $66.

Motocyclist Killed

WENTZVILLE, Mo. (AP) — A motocyclist was killed in a practice run Saturday at the Mid-America Raceway in Wentzville, the Highway Patrol reported.

He was identified as Charles Eugene Metheny, 32, an Air Force staff sergeant stationed at Craig Air Force Base in Selma, Ala.

A spokesman at the track said Metheny was speeding down a straightaway at 100 mph when his throttle apparently became stuck. Metheny then lost control on an S-curve and struck a tree.

Withdrawal Of Two Battalions Ordered

US Troop To Return From Dominican

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — An additional 1,400 U. S. troops will be coming home from the Dominican Republic, President Johnson announced Saturday.

Johnson, acting on the recommendation of the troop commanders of the inter-American force guarding the uneasy truce in Santo Domingo, ordered the withdrawal of two battalions of the 82nd Airborne Division.

The President said in a statement that Gen. Hugh Panasco Alvim of Brazil, commander of the force and the deputy commander, U.S. Lt. Gen. Bruce Palmer Jr., advised him "conditions in the Dominican Republic now permit further withdrawal of U.S. military personnel."

He said also the generals' recommendation has the concurrence of the special committee of the Organization of American States and U.S. Ambassador W. Tapley Bennett.

"It will be an orderly withdrawal beginning next week," White House press secretary George E. Reedy told newsmen.

Asked whether the action could be interpreted as a new sign of hope for the solution of the political crisis in the island republic, Reedy said:

"We are hopeful as we have been from the beginning that a satisfactory solution will be found."

The new withdrawal will reduce to about 10,900 the number of U.S. troops and airmen on duty at Santo Domingo. This compares with peak strength of about 22,000.

Johnson announced also the creation of a high-level advisory committee on international monetary affairs, took care of some other government business, and still found time for a bit of relaxation.

He also saw an old friend, U.S. Dist. Court Judge Homer Thornberry, sworn in as a judge of the U.S. Court of appeals for the 5th Circuit.

Rainfall For First Half Of 1965 Falls To Sent Any Record

Even though a whopping 10.08 inches of rainfall fell in June, the total for the first half of 1965 failed to set any sort of record. The total for the six-month period, up to July 2, was 25.22 inches. Looking back over the years the record shows 28.44 inches fell in the same period of 1964, 27.10 in 1960, 25.13 in 1959, and 21.35 in 1951.

The low for a six-month period since 1951 was 9.59 inches in 1957. The record for the first six months is: January, 2.76 inches, February, 1.84, March, 3.06, April, 4.47, May, 2.06, June 10.08. The record shows 1.95 inches have fallen, up to Saturday, in July.

Review Of Governor's Work

Legislative Session Ends With Hearnese Hitting High

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes went in to the 1965 legislature with two strikes against him but emerged batting almost a thousand.

The governor's two effective aides served in the House with him. They were Eugene P. Walsh of St. Louis and Austin Hill, formerly of Franklin in Howard County.

On orders from the governor, they were never on the floor of the House and Senate. Neither was the governor.

His first appearance, except for formal messages, was on the final night, Wednesday, when he spoke to both House and Senate, thanking members for their cooperation. He said the 73rd General Assembly had done one of the most remarkable jobs in the history of the state.

But the governor held weekly meetings with legislators and kept his door open to other members throughout the session. Meanwhile his aides, Walsh and Hill, patrolled the corridors and buttonholed the members in their offices. Walsh stuck pretty much to the Senate side while Hill was busy with his former House colleagues.

The success of this approach was attested by the governor when he claimed that all 19 of his major legislative recommendations had been passed.

He did not mention a constitutional amendment which died on the Senate calendar in the final hours. It would have permitted voters to pass general obligation bond issues by a 60 per cent instead of a two-thirds majority.

But the big problems were solved, one way or another, even though House and congressional redistricting probably face court tests soon.

The governor listed that as the session's most important business because a federal court had decreed the 1965 legislature existed only as a "de facto" body. Its future status still awaits court clarification.

Two other priority projects were passed after the governor, in a special message, said he would call a special session if the legislature failed to act.

Could Set New Record

Highway Deaths Mount Rapidly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Highway fatalities mounted Saturday at a rate which safety experts said indicated a record number of deaths could occur during this Fourth of July holiday weekend.

A total of 116 deaths was reported through the early afternoon hours.

Rudisill To Chairmanship In UF Drive

Robert C. Rudisill, manager of J. C. Penney Company, has accepted the position of business division chairman of the 1965 United Fund Campaign, according to Harry Kull, general chairman of the 1965 campaign.

According to Kull, this type community work is not new to Rudisill. He has served on the United Fund Board of Directors in Kankakee, Ill., prior to coming to Sedalia. He is a member of Rotary Club and the University Extension Council.

Much work has been done in getting ready for the 1965 Fund Campaign, according to Damon Hieronymus, general budget chairman, who called the first budget meeting June 29. The 13 agencies receiving funds, presented their budget requests to the committee, the committee being divided into three smaller committees, to be able to give sufficient time to each agency.

K. U. Love was the chairman of the first committee, and working with him were W. A. Schien, C. W. Mathieson, H. Mike O'Connor, and W. E. Hurlbut.

The second committee was chaired by Phillip McLaughlin, M. L. McQuitty, L. R. Hughes, and H. S. Naugel.

The third committee was chaired by M. F. Hogan, with members being P. C. Owen and Mrs. Mary Louise Cain.

The participating agencies going before these committees with their proposed budgets were Red Cross, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs, Cerebral Palsy, Mercy Hospital, Melita Day Nursery, Minniola Day Nursery, Missouri Association of Social Welfare, Pettis County Child Welfare, Travelers Aid, and the USO.

According to Hank Monsees, executive director of United Funds, each agency had to justify its request for funds on the basis of a nine point standard. A tentative figure for the 1965 Fund campaign was arrived at through this procedure, but the goal has not been set.

The next meeting of the board will be held Wednesday evening, at the Bothwell Hotel.

The National Safety Council said this was considerably ahead of the 1964 July 4th weekend when 510 persons perished — a record for a three-day Independence Day observance.

Five persons in one car died near Waterloo, N.Y. Saturday when their vehicle collided head-on with a Greyhound bus. Authorities said the auto had crossed the center mall of the rain-slicked New York State Thruway. It was the most spectacular and tragic accident reported so far.

Roads were clogged as millions of motorists sought a holiday change of pace from normal routine. The weather was generally fair over the nation but safety experts urged extra vigilance by motorists because of the heavy traffic.

The safety council has estimated that in the 78 hours which started at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Monday local time between 470 and 570 persons will lose their lives in traffic mishaps.

The council figures that motorists will drive nine billion miles before the weekend period ends Monday night.

The council said that in a corresponding summer weekend period of 78 hours not involving a holiday 435 deaths were reported on the highways.

The Associated Press for its own comparison made a count of traffic fatalities for the non-holiday period from 6 p.m. Friday, June 18, through midnight Monday, June 21. The total was 363.

Government Popularity To A Test

TOKYO (AP) — The popularity of Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's eight-month-old government will be put to the test in Sunday's election of 127 members of the 250-seat upper house of Parliament.

One major question is how much the nation favors the Sato government siding with U.S. policy in Viet Nam. This had been an issue in the campaign with Socialists and others calling for U.S. withdrawal from South Viet Nam.

Sato's Liberal Democrat party, confident of returning all 75 incumbents to maintain its 144-seat, needs a mandate to consolidate its position. Sato took over last November from Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda, who was ill.

Fifty seats, plus two vacancies, being contested by 99 candidates, are at stake from the nation at large and 75 seats are being sought by 233 candidates in local constituencies.

A total of 61,672,472 Japanese are eligible to vote at 45,496 polling places. The polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 6 p.m.

Although voting may be postponed in some districts of Kyushu, southern Japan, hard hit by heavy rains Friday, early returns are expected by mid-night Sunday. Final results in the local contests are expected by Monday noon and nationwide finals by early Tuesday.

Turnout at the polls is not expected to top the last upper house election's 68.21 per cent.

Most public opinion polls predict Sato's party will lose a minimum of five seats, but this still will give it a majority.

The Socialists, who held 65 seats before election are confident of returning all 29 up for re-election.

The Neo-Buddhist Soka Gakkai's Komeito has 14 candidates. It holds only four seats.

State Agencies Closed

JEFFERSON CITY, (AP) — State agencies will be closed Monday, July 5, as the state celebrates the Fourth of July holiday.

An exception is the Highway Patrol. Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent, said all available troopers will be on the roads in an effort to halt the rising traffic toll.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I have a problem which is shared by many service wives. If you can help us we'd be mightily grateful.

Jack is away from us for weeks at a time. We expect these long periods of separation. When Jack is at home he is too tired to discipline the children so the job is mine and I have accepted it.

Our children are 12, 8, and 6. They look to me for everything. If their father tells them to do something they ask me if they really should do it. This hurts Jack because he feels that his children do not respect him.

I have tried any number of ways to make the children respect their father but it is useless. Please, Ann, tell me how to improve the situation. It is tearing me apart.—WORRIED ARMY WIFE

Dear Wife: Respect is not negotiable. It must be earned—one day at a time. You can't force one person to respect another.

You CAN insist that the children behave respectfully toward their father, however. This much they owe him and I hope you will work on it at once.

Dear Ann Landers: I am taking a couple of courses in summer school so I will be able to graduate with my class next year. I don't know whether all summer schools are like this one but I have never run into a creeper bunch of kids.

There is one couple who claim they are engaged. The girl is 16 and the boy is 17. They kiss each other good-bye when the bell rings and they have to go to different classes. When they meet for lunch they kiss hello. All this goes on in the main hall right in front of everybody.

We were discussing these two at lunch and I said I thought they were sickening. Several girls said they thought it was all right for them to kiss because they are engaged. What do you say? — VOTING THUMBS DOWN

Dear Voting: I say there's a time and a place for affection. School is not the place, and between classes is not the time. The fact that this couple is engaged does not make kissing in public acceptable. I'd like to know what kind of principal and faculty the school has—are they blind or just too lazy to move?

Dear Ann Landers: Is it possible for you to quit printing those confidantials at the foot of your column? They must help some people but they cause a lot of trouble for others.

Several women who work in my department are sure those confidantials are for them. Every other day someone is insulted, hurt or angry.

Last week one woman accused me of sending you a confidential to humiliate her. I had not seen the paper and didn't know what she was talking about. It so happened that the last initial of the signature was the same as hers. No amount of talking could persuade her that she was mistaken.

So, Ann, please drop those confidantials and print only letters which give full details. In that way nothing is left to the imagination, and people will not be hurt needlessly. Thank you very much — INNOCENT BYSTANDER.

Dear Innocent: I have news for you. The letters "with full details" create more problems than the confidantials. Every week at least a dozen people write to chew me out for printing a letter which brought "their" problem before the world. (And they ALL are referring to the same letter.)

It appears this is one problem for which Ann Landers has no solution.

Presbyterian Church gave a miscellaneous shower June 17 at the home of Mrs. Maude Ward for Mrs. Tom Butts, a circle member, whose family lost home and belongings recently in a fire.

Food was planned for the Green Ridge High School alumni banquet July 10 in the church dining room.

Summer medical offering envelopes were collected and postage was given for used clothing collected for Church World Service.

Mrs. Verna Palmer presided and opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. L. B. Beach presented the Bible lesson, "Mutual Obligations of Freedom."

Andrews denied the Republican party is dead, adding that there still is "a chance" that conservatives can recover its leadership. But, he said, this is doubtful.

"However, we're not closing the doors to a resuscitation in the party. If we could get real conservative leadership in the Republican party, we would find conservatives flocking to it like they did to (former GOP presidential nominee Barry) Goldwater."

Andrews said that, if the Congress decided to form a third party, it would do so in time for the 1966 state and national elections. If not, he said he hopes a full slate of conservative candidates would be filed either by the Democrats or by the Republicans.

"Either way," he added, "We will have our own candidates, both for the state legislature and for Congress."

Andrews said the Congress of Conservatives could support Missouri's present GOP congressmen, Reps. Thomas B. Curtis of St. Louis County and Durward G. Hall of Springfield.

Andrews said he hopes the state organization will elect a regional director from each of Missouri's 10 Congressional districts next month. He said the congress also will attempt to find volunteer leaders and

State-Wide Move Toward Conservatism

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An independent state-wide move is underway in Missouri to elect conservative congressmen and state legislators either as Democrats or Republicans or as members of a third political party.

Mark Andrews, a suburban Huntleigh rotary printing equipment manufacturer, said the newly-formed Congress of Conservatives is directing the movement.

"About 6,000 invitations have been sent out to attend our first state convention Aug. 28 in Jefferson City," Andrews said. "We expect about 200 persons at this organizational meeting."

Andrews, one of two St. Louis area persons named to a 39-member advance committee in May at Chicago to organize the congress nationally, said the immediate task of the group is not necessarily to form a third party.

"But if a national third party is formed," he explained, "We will at least have a beginning to implement it. However, the Congress of Conservatives is not yet a bonafide third party movement."

Floyd G. Kitchen of suburban Maplewood, an executive assistant at Andrews' firm, is the other member of the Congress' advance committee in Missouri.

The organization's "bible," the declaration of principles, calls on the advance committee to "encourage the formation of appropriate new state parties, support existing independent parties, seek the achievement of a national committee and encourage the appearance of potential candidates for the new national party's nomination."

But, Andrews explained, the decision to form a third party would have to be made at the national level. Meanwhile, he added, the congress will support conservative candidates from either major political party.

The 1956 presidential election was the first in Missouri in which no minor party or non-partisan candidate was on the ballot for any post for which there was a state-wide vote. No third party candidate has run for office on a state-wide basis since then.

Andrews denied the Republican party is dead, adding that there still is "a chance" that conservatives can recover its leadership. But, he said, this is doubtful.

National Baseball Congress Will Hold Tournament At Sedalia Park

The 30th Annual Missouri State National Baseball Congress Tournament will open at Sedalia's Liberty Park on Tuesday evening, July 27, it was announced today.

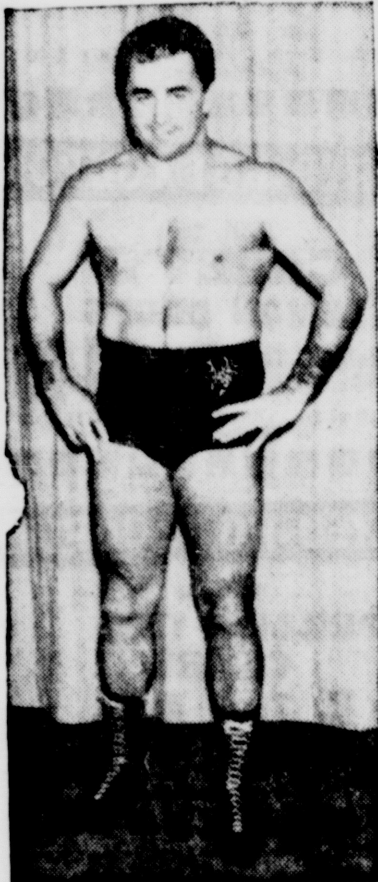

George W. Ray, state commissioner for the National Baseball Congress, said that the state tournament is under the sponsorship of the Sedalia Kiwanis Club this year.

The winner of the NBC state tournament will become state champion and will be eligible to compete in the national finals at Wichita, Kan., starting Aug. 13.

The Fulton Sports are the defending champions. They defeated the Sedalia Merchants, the 1963 State winners, last year.

The NBC tournament will see 16 semi-pro clubs with players of unlimited age in action this year. The tournament will play off by elimination, starting with the opening evening on July 27, and will play each evening until its completion some 14 days later.

The participating teams are the Sedalia Merchants; Jefferson City Carling Red Birds; Columbia Merchants; A. R. Gaines' Baseball School, Honeywell, Mo.; Malden Braves; Nixa Merchants; North County Domes, North St. Louis; Sports Baseball Club of Mexico; Nevada Merchants; Dent County Monarchs, Salem, Mo.; Excelsior Springs Merchants; White-man Air Force Base; Montrose; St. Joseph and Iberia.

Geigel Has Partner For Mat Program

Whenever Bob Geigel appears on a wrestling program there's bound to be some wild action. Whenever Geigel has a partner along with him, things figure to get extra rough.

That probably will be the case here Tuesday when Geigel sides with Dutch Savage as the two longtime ring brawlers set out to defend their Central States team championship.

Posing a solid challenge to the two ruffians will be Sonny Myers, veteran Missouri stalwart with two decades of heavyweight wrestling behind him, and Jerry Miller, a stylish newcomer to this area who has proved himself against hardy opponents.

The championship will be the main event program. Like the companion girls clash sharing top billing, it will be over the best of three-falls with a 60-minute time limit.

Prepared for an all-out scrap in that girls match are Kay Noble and Betty Niccoli, both fast and scrappy. Noble is a long-stemmed, slender redhead who is a battler first class. She's been a mainliner on the Midlands scene for the last five seasons and can handle herself in any action. Niccoli is aggressive, well versed in the roughing phases of the game and has no feeling whatever for her opponent.

Each feature should provide Handicap Golf Play Set For July 4 At Sedalia Country Club

Sedalia Country Club individual handicap club championship will be played Sunday, July 4, at the Sedalia Country Club.

Forty players are expected to participate for the trophies awarded for four low net scores. Play shall come in at 12:30 p. m.

All-Stars' Tour Becomes Good Will Trip For Team

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It had been an impressive briefing with State Department representatives cramming the National Basketball Association players full of facts, figures and the importance of being good will ambassadors.

"Now," said one of the State Department men, "do any of you have any questions — about anything?"

Silence for a moment. Then Bailey Howell uncurred his 6-foot-8-frame and in that slow Middletown, Tenn., drawl politely inquired:

"Where's the best place to find cuckoo clocks?"

With that the NBA All-Stars' month-long tour of Europe (25 cities) was launched — a tour that's going to be remembered for a long time, on both sides of the Atlantic.

Wayne Embry of the Cincinnati Royals was the first victim of the language barrier.

He lost his suitcase in an airport mix-up in Bulgaria and had to exist the rest of the trip on hand-me-downs from Nate Thurmond of the San Francisco Warriors.

"I didn't mind too much," Embry said. "Of course, I had to do a lot of washing every night. But that wasn't the worst of it. You should have seen the beds. They weren't exactly the kind some of us are used to."

Embry is 6-8 and weighs 250 pounds. Thurmond is 6-11, 225.

"In one place," Embry said, "the bed had such a sag that I figured if I moved an inch it would collapse with me in the middle."

"Ordering food was pretty much of a chance, too. They'd always give you one of those big menus and you'd open it and laugh. You couldn't even begin to read it."

In Beirut a dinner was thrown by the Lebanese Basketball Federation in honor of the Americans.

It consisted of 42 different courses.

In the middle of the table was a big silver-covered dish which caught the attention of Hal Greer of the Philadelphia 76ers.

"What's in it?" Greer asked. One of his smiling hosts uncovered a sheep's leg dipped in blood.

Greer, one of the fastest back-court men in the NBA, looked even faster on his way to the men's room.

At the airport in Bucharest, Romania, the boys ganged up on Bill Bates, the 76ers' trainer who doubled as a player during the trip.

"We figured we'd play a trick on Bates," Embry said. "He's the most excitable guy anyway."

"So we got this guard (who was wearing a gun) to go up to him just before we were ready to board the plane and tell him he couldn't leave the country."

"That was some sight. There's Bill with those big horn-rimmed glasses, trying to make sense of what the guy is saying and screaming. 'What do you mean I can't leave the country? What have I done?'"

"This went on for about 10 minutes before the guy finally broke up and Bill realized it was a joke."

a wide assortment of ring fireworks.

For the tag team clash, two referees have been assigned to patrol the action. Richard Moody and Larry Williams will both be on hand.

The opening test at 8:15 will send Geigel against Miller in a one-fall, 20-minute event.

Baseball's Oddities

Lolich Says No-Hitters Are Plain Bad Medicine

By TOM TIEDE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Detroit's Mickey Lolich almost pitched a no-hitter against Minnesota a couple of years ago... but he's glad he didn't.

"Gosh," he says, "no-hitters are just a jinx. I don't want any part of them. I hope I never pitch one."

Now that's odd coming from one of baseball's top twirlers.

But then, so's Mickey... odd, that is. He's hard to figure as an Einstein equation. And more funny things happen to him than to a comic on his way to the theater.

Like the time he failed to show up for spring training and Detroit management called up his home to question the delay.

The Mick said he was taking a civil service examination to become a parttime mailman.

"They need guys like me during the Christmas rush," he explained.

"Then stay home in December," shouted the front office man, "but get down to Florida in March."

Or the incident one night in Detroit when a fuming Lolich became dissatisfied with his stuff in a game. So he pulled himself. He stopped pitching, marched to the dugout, into the dressing room and under a shower.

After the game he strolled into manager Charley Dressen's office, counted out five $20 bills and laid them on the desk.

"What's that for?" asked Dressen in awe.

"My fine," said Lolich and he walked out, never to mention it again.

Lolich is a left-handed lolapalooza on the Tiger team. He talks upside down and reasons in curves. And when a scribe once asked him how he was thinking during a particularly windy game, he replied:

"Well, when it was blowing to the right, I thought to the left. When it blew to the left, I was thinking to the right."

Often, those who don't catch on think he's some kind of a nut.

"During the game I'm serious," he says. "I only joke around off field. And why shouldn't I? I've a good sense of humor and so I do things because I figure somebody else might find them funny."

Most of the time they do. But not always. Take the Pacific Coast League umpire who once called a ball on the Mick. Lolich let out a yelp, cussed, got the ball from the catcher and without waiting for a signal let loose with everything he had.

The ball sailed past the batter, past the catcher... but not past the umpire. It broke his elbow.

Breshears Best In Weekly Tournament

V. Breshears, LaMonte, took top honors in the Thursday night horseshoe pitching tournament at Liberty Park with a score of 7-0. Players were hindered because the pits turned to mud toward the end of the tournament.

Following Breshears on the scoreboard were: C. Martin, 6-1; C. Rush, 4-3; V. Abney, 4-3; C. Faulkner, 4-3; K. Faulkner, 2-5, all of Sedalia; L. Looney, visiting here from Ohio, 1-6; D. Bass, Sedalia, 0-7.

Play will resume this Thursday, weather conditions permitting.

Catches Are Reported

Two area fishermen reported catches within the past week at two southern Missouri lakes.

Keith McKay and son, Marshall, pulled in 15 bass in the Lower Table Rock area. The largest of the bass weighed in at three pounds.

Robert Ingrom, Warsaw, landed the limit of trout at Lake Taneycomo.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

IT is an old subject, but after seeing and hearing what can be done, I felt I should pass on to the organizers, or would-be organizers, of a Smith-Cotton Booster Club, what I learned out in Hawaii. Rather gratifying too, yet they had their troubles getting started, but what a "whale" of a success it is.

Seems this John Campbell High School Boosters organization ran into almost exactly what has happened in Sedalia — but it was overcome. Yes, two or three persons opposed it, but then the parents of the high school students went ahead and, despite a few stumbling blocks, they were stepped over and the Club was organized.

In "stepping over" I do not mean they were pushed around or anything like that. The Club organized, began activity and before long the opposers soon saw the benefits that came from it in affecting the spirit, school spirit that is, in a majority of the students.

The Club, like most Booster Clubs, did not interfere in any way with the administration of the school, athletic or scholastic program. The only connection it has with athletics is assisting the school in bolstering attendance at its various games, helping out financially, when there is a little item which could be of help to the athletes and monies are not included in the budget for it and no funds are in sight.

For instance, here the school's finances were not up to what could make it possible to get athletes warm-up jackets — the school had only been in existence for two years and it was in its third year. The Booster Club obtained the jackets by raising monies through a "brunch" which netted $1,600; another program with a carnival which brought in several hundred dollars, obtained plaques for the players and such.

The Club is now underwriting a financial problem of some $2,500 and incidentally the group through its planning and "scrourging" has already well over $1,000 in its treasury and will have the rest by mid-football season. Then they turn their attention to other athletic activities of the school strictly on a basis of "helping and assisting" only when the athletic director or coaches express a desire for that assistance. Otherwise the attention of the club is turned strictly to encouraging parents, townspeople and students of the school to attend these school functions.

Its organization is much like that of the Jefferson City high school, which has clicked with efficiency. It created a great school spirit in public high there.

To me it has been rather amusing in Sedalia's organization, when I was "jumped" by the organizers for help, and they folded up like an accordion — for "fear" of hurting someone's feelings. The only feeling that I can see that have been hurt is the school's athletic program for lack of support from the parents and those persons who would like to be interested in the school activity.

The example I have just pointed out is one which I have had a chance to study the past two weeks. The Booster Club activity did not stop at the end of the school year. They continue to have their meetings during these summer months, make plans on fund raising, and actually have built a real community organization which is a credit to this community which has approximately 1,600 students.

Unlike Sedalia, this also includes the seventh grade, representing about 300 students.

Now to you men who have been on my "back" about assistance, let's see some action on your part and NO BACKING OFF.

Way Back When...

NEED SOME GOOD, healthy exercise? Try codeball, the man says. Its therapeutic value is immeasurable. Codeball? Of course, but first decide whether you want the indoor or outdoor version. Naturally, but what's codeball?

A quick glance through some moldy old records shows that back in 1929 a Dr. William E. Code, Chicago, was asked for a good way to remove flabbiness from hips and legs. Kicking, he determined, was such a way. Unfortunately, people don't like to kick at thin air, and consequently he decided on a game. Well, actually two games — one for the youngsters and something less strenuous for older folk.

That decision wasn't made, though, until some elderly chap saw the first game and gave it a noticeably cool reception. A thumbs-down sort of vote.

Nevertheless, the youngsters, thought Dr. Code, could play what was later named "codeball-in-court." This indoor game uses a ball about six inches in diameter and about 12 ounces in weight. You can't touch it with hands or bat, but have to kick it against a wall and keep it moving — and you very definitely can work flabbiness off legs and hips that way. The game is governed by the rules of handball, generally speaking.

THEN, FOR THOSE not quite as quick on their feet anymore, the outdoor, and much revised, version of the sport came into being. It was later to be named "codeball-on-green" and is much like golf — except that clubs or the use of hands are not allowed. Just isn't cricket. You have to kick the ball off the tee and then use as few kicks as possible to propel it into a bowl about 18 inches wide and seven and a half inches deep. The regular course consists of 14 bowls — with traps and hazards added for good measure.

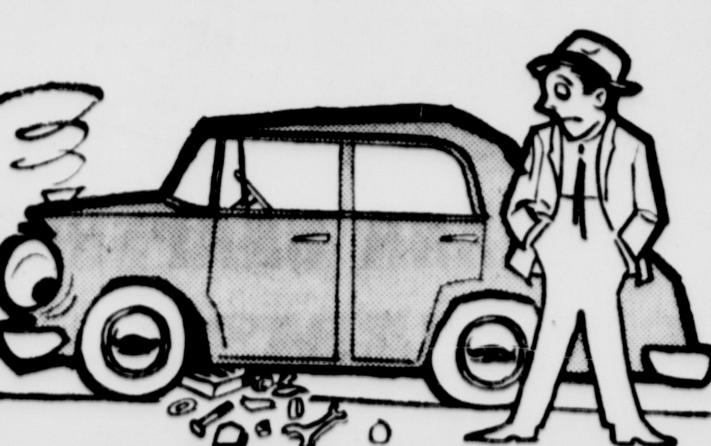

By 1932, "codeball-in-court" was well established and the outdoor game had gained in popularity at golf courses. Hospitals found the games to have tremendous therapeutic value and some of them, notably the U. S. War Veterans Hospital in North Chicago, made it available to their patients.

What with physical fitness such a big thing these days, it's a wonder the sport hasn't had more of a revival if it's had any revival at all.

Fast Team Has Winning Combination

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — (NEA) — If the Wood boys of Stuart, Va., ever decide to open up a service station, the gas pump biz will never be the same again.

They are the fastest pit crew in auto racing history. In a game where a single second may cost thousands of dollars in prize money, they can (1) change two auto tires, (2) fill a gas tank and (3) clean a windshield in 21 seconds flat.

The Wood boys are Glen Wood, a mechanic, and three employees. Until recently, they played their particular talents almost exclusively in the field of stock car racing.

During the Indianapolis 500, however, they were hired to mind the machinery for England's Jim Clark and his Lotus Ford. Clark made two pit stops during his winning and record-breaking performance—one was 21 seconds long and the other 25.

The Wood boys amazed Clark and other European imports who have roughly grown used to shabby pit crew treatment in their own countries. Foreign pit stops are yawn-inspiring — three and four minutes to change petrol alone.

And even when the cars do get back on the European tracks, everyone keeps their fingers crossed. French, Italian and English mechanics have a habit of leaving wrenches and rags under the hoods.

Twins 3, A's 2
KANSAS CITY (AP) — Don Mincher socked his second homer of the game in the 11th inning Saturday night, boosting the Minnesota Twins to a 3-2 victory over Kansas City and into a share of the American League lead.

Minnesota is tied for first with the Cleveland Indians, beaten 8-4 by Baltimore in an afternoon game.

Mincher, who homered in the fourth for the Twins' first run, connected as leadoff man in the 11th against Jim Dickson, sixth of seven Kansas City pitchers. Al Worthington was the winner.

The A's tied the score at 1-1 in their half of the inning on a double by Jim Landis and a single by Ed Charles.

Sandy Valdespino singled for the Twins with two out in the fifth, stole second and scored on a single by Tony Oliva.

The A's again pulled even in the fifth when Landis doubled. Skip Lockwood home from second.

Jim Wyatt choked off a Twins rally in the ninth with a dramatic bit of relief pitching, striking out three straight after coming in with men on first and third and none out.

The victory for McLain was his fifth straight and brought his record to 6-3. He retired the first six men before Lock led off the third with a single to right field. He then retired the last nine batters.

The Tigers scored an unearned run off Pete Richert in the third inning. Ray Oyler opened with a single to left.

The victory went to Lopez, although the rookie left-hander had to retire after five innings after bruising the index finger of his left hand when he was struck by a ground ball. Lopez, now 8-7, allowed only one hit.

Smith Routs Bueno In Tennis Play

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Margaret Smith, the 23-year-old Australian amazon, won back the Wimbledon singles crown from Maria Bueno, the Brazilian titleholder, Saturday in 55 minutes of vintage tennis, 6-4, 7-5.

It was a performance similar to last year's final, in which Maria, snatched the title from Margaret in a thrill-packed drama of jittery nerves.

Miss Smith reportedly suffers badly from center court nerves, but she showed no sign of them as she coolly and competently pressed home the advantage her superior physique gave her.

The women's victory gave the Australians their first sweep ever of both singles titles. Roy Emerson crushed Fred Stolle in three straight sets Friday in a clash of Australian Davis Cup teammates.

In addition, the Aussies made a cleanup of four of the five championships, adding the men's doubles and mixed doubles trophies to their bag.

The only title to elude the Australians was the women's doubles, won by Miss Bueno and Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif. They trounced the French pair of Francoise Durr and Janine Liefbrig, 6-2, 7-5.

Miss Bueno's service and Billie Jean's net play featured the triumph.

Cubs' nine hits, including two singles off Shaw and a double off reliever Masanori Murakami.

After Landrum's double, Murakami walked Williams and was replaced by Frank Linzy.

Ernie Banks stroked a two-out single, driving across Landrum and Williams after they worked a double steal on Linzy.

Stargell's homer capped a four-run outburst in the sixth inning and sent home Roberto Clemente, who had tripled across Bob Bailey and Bill Virdon.

Clemente collected three hits and drove in two runs, extending his hitting streak to 12 straight games. The Pirates raked four Milwaukee pitchers for 15 hits.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Curt Blefary's second homer of the game, a three-run blast, sparked a seven-run explosion in the eighth inning that shot Baltimore past Cleveland 8-4 Saturday.

The loss was only the fourth in the last 22 games for the American League-leading Indians.

Blefary, who had four hits altogether, drove his 13th homer over the right field fence just after Jack Kralick relieved starter Luis Tiant. The blow wiped out a 3-1 lead the Indians took into the inning.

Buso Wins Trophy Dash

Friday night was Kid Night at Thunderbowl Speedway, with free prizes given away at a drawing in a program that saw Ernie Buso again win the Trophy Dash, this time in 1.14.82—the second time this year.

The victory netted Buso his second trophy, limit for the year, and a month's free car washes.

The "A" time trials were won by Ken Harper in 1.07.81. He also won a month's free car wash.

Other victors Friday night were: First heat—Darrell Summers; second heat, Doug Harper; third heat, Gus Lee; fourth heat, Ken Taylor.

Buso captured the B feature and Tom Corbin won the A feature.

Annual Open House Set By Local Club

The Sedalia Rod and Gun Club will hold its annual open house today, with family recreation and a fireworks display scheduled for the day long event.

A trophy shoot will be held at 1 p. m. Anyone desiring to shoot will get the opportunity since the trap and skeet shooting range will be open during the day.

A massive fireworks display at 9 p. m. will close the day.

Three Tickets Result

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Youths driving noisy cars at reportedly high rates of speed got Sgt. C. V. Cundiff of the Missouri Highway Patrol out of bed about 1 a. m. Saturday, and the result was tickets for three of them.

Marshall Burns, 17, and Josep L. Harris, 20, were charged with reckless driving and not having proper mufflers. A juvenile, 16, was given tickets charging improper registration, no muffler and reckless driving.

Grants Approved

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Common market has approved grants of $2.5 million by the European Social Fund to cover half the cost of retraining and resettling 7,000 unemployed workers in West Germany, France and Holland.

Heat Stroke Is Fatal To Youth Corpsman

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — William Walter Miller, 19, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, died Saturday apparently as the result of a heat stroke suffered while working on a neighborhood Youth Corps project.

Miller and Michael Gibson were working Friday on the lawn and shrubbery at Central Police Station. Gibson said Miller had left, saying he was going to see his brother.

A few minutes later Officer Garry Pettijohn found Miller collapsed about one-half block south of the station. An ambulance took Miller to a hospital.

The attending physician said Miller apparently had suffered a heat stroke.

Torre And Mays With All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Repeaters Willie Mays and Joe Torre topped the National League All-Star team named Saturday that included such power hitters as Henry Aaron, Ernie Banks, Richie Allen and Willie Stargell.

Fleet-footed Maury Wills and Pete Rose round out the starting team, exclusive of the pitcher, that will face the American League's best in the 36th All-Star game in Minnesota July 13.

An indication of the strength of the NL line-up is the fact that it had not room for such as Roberto Clemente, Frank Robinson, Bill White and Curt Flood.

Mays, the brilliant San Francisco center fielder, won his position in a breeze. He captured 250 votes out of a possible 255. It was the 12th straight year he'd been named to the starting lineup.

Cincinnati's Vada Pinson, the runner-up, received only 17 votes, all from the Giants who could not vote for their own man.

Torre also was a huge vote-getter. The stocky Milwaukee catcher got 246 votes to only 24 for runner-up John Edwards of Cincinnati.

Torre and Mays were the only repeaters from last year's team, which included first baseman Orlando Cepeda, second baseman Ron Hunt, third baseman Ken Boyer, shortstop Dick Groat and outfielders Billy Williams and Clemente.

Of these, only Williams was able to make the second team this year. The Chicago Cubs' left fielder drew 61 votes to 194 for Pittsburgh's Stargell.

The only close race was for second base where Rose, Cincinnati's aggressive leadoff hitter, edged out veteran Frank Bolling of the Braves, 110 votes to 100.

On the surface, the Nationals appeared to have a much stronger starting team than the Americans, who have Bill Skowron at first base, Felix Mantilla at second, Brooks Robinson at third, Dick McAuliffe at short, Willie Horton in left, Vic Davalillo in center, Rocky Colavito in right and Earl Battey behind the plate.

Commissioner Ford Frick, whose office conducted the polls from among the 562 players, coaches and managers in the two leagues, said the alternates and pitchers will be named next week.

No Very Much Aid

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Abaz Laze, chief of an Albanian trade union delegation back in Tirana from a visit to Hanoi, says all the aid Moscow has given North Viet Nam consists of medicines, 200 bicycles and five accordions.

In a broadcast on the official radio of pro-Peking, anti-Moscow Albania, Laze added that the Russians "are the only great power chauvinists who regard aid as alms and not as their international duty."

Reds Capture Gold Medals In Deaf Olympics

The Russians walked off with three gold medals to one for the United States, and produced their second triple gold medal winner, walker Victor Demanov.

Children Need Head Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some children need a head start in life's race.

If you're six years old and starting school, how can you learn to read and write if there never was a book, a pencil, or even a crayon in your home?

How can you sit still in a chair, if you've never had a chair?

How can you understand the teacher if you've never heard as many as 100 different words in all your life, and many of the words you did hear were curses?

How can you be eager and attentive in class if you're partially blind, or deaf, or have nutritional anemia that saps your strength?

These are the children that Project Head Start seeks to help. They need medical and dental care, but most of all they need to have doors and windows opened on their narrow lives. Some have never held a flower. Most have never been to a zoo or a museum.

In an intensive, eight-week program now getting under way, Project Head Start seeks to supply these needs, to give "poverty's children" a running start when they enter school this fall.

Sargent Shriver, commander of what President Johnson calls his "war on poverty," describes the future for disadvantaged children:

"Educators tell us these children will start the first grade already six months to a year behind children from 'normal' homes and families. By third grade they will be one year to 18 months behind. By eighth grade they will be two years behind. At 10th grade, if they get that far, they will drop out of school and into hopeless poverty forever."

Thus some 530,000 children in 2,600 communities — centered heavily in the nation's 300 poorest counties — are entering the newly created child guidance centers across the nation.

In every state — in every county of some states — underprivileged youngsters will get a helping hand. They will be taught by trained educators, by volunteer aides, by neighbors, even by their own parents, who are expected to learn a great deal themselves in the process.

It is hoped that parents may learn better nutrition, even better table manners, from helping prepare and serve lunches for their children. There also will be more direct instruction for parents so that they may help their children.

Out of every 100,000 children, nearly 37,000 are expected to have serious medical problems. This includes 500 with active tuberculosis, 4,000 who are partially blind, 15,000 with eye difficulties, 10,000 who are partially deaf, 5,000 cases of nutritional anemia, 250 cerebral palsy victims, 2,000 mentally retarded and others without proper immunization for diphtheria or tetanus.

Some children came from Mexican-American, Indian, or other families where English normally isn't spoken at home. They will be taught English, the language used in school.

The program is tailored to fit the needs of the youngsters who attend.

Originally planned for about 100,000 youngsters, Project Head Start has been expanded again and again.

Much like the Peace Corps, it began with a study group and grew to fruition in an atmosphere of crisis and confusion. It was a crash program all the way. The first applications came in early April.

Government internes volunteered their weekends and evenings to screen prospective projects. Hundreds of doctors and dentists, child specialists, educational leaders, all joined to help.

Head Start got its official send-off at a White House tea in February, given by Lady Bird Johnson.

When the tea was announced, a telephone call came in from Mrs. Orval Faubus, wife of the Arkansas governor. She was indignant because Mrs. Winthrop Rockefeller, wife of the Republican her husband defeated last fall, had been invited. Mrs. Faubus hadn't been.

Then it was decided to invite the wives of all governors.

Officials say nobody paid special attention to Mrs. Faubus at the tea, but when she got home she went all out for the program. A series of integrated luncheons at the governor's mansion helped make Head Start a success in Arkansas.

"People who hadn't spoken to each other since the Little Rock school crisis in 1957 got together," a Head Start official says. "The program in Arkansas is one of our best. We cite Mrs. Faubus as an example when others ask us how to get a Head Start program going."

Other governor's ladies who get top rating from Project Head Start officials include Mrs. Hulett C. Smith of West Virginia, Mrs. William Scranton of Pennsylvania, Mrs. George Romney of Michigan and Mrs. Warren Knowles of Wisconsin.

Pre-school nursery programs are not new, points out Dr. Julius B. Richmond, director of Project Head Start, but "this is the first such program where the focus really is on the child. Similar programs in the past have been trying to free the mother for employment."

Richmond, a pediatrician and former dean of the medical faculty of the State University of New York, adds:

"In this program we are bringing together comprehensive means for helping the children. We have medical and dental examinations. We must follow through and get the health defects corrected. We will uncover a lot of things in a very short time. Most communities aren't geared to act this rapidly, but they are making an all-out effort."

In the child development centers, Dr. Richmond says, "we will try to broaden the experience of the child so he can relate to people around him. This will include trips to zoos, museums, fire stations, police stations. We want to show that a man in uniform isn't an enemy."

"We also want to show that it is fun to learn. Teach children how to work with art materials, play materials, help activate their imagination. If you view the teacher as a threat, then you certainly are going to have trouble learning from her."

Coupled with the program for children is parent education. "Some projects will work with individual parents," says Richmond, "others with groups, others with home visits. We will try to get the parents to do more with their children. Also we will try to involve people from the neighborhoods who have been more successful with their children."

"The program is short. We would like it to be more. But we certainly can do something about health problems, particularly nutritional problems."

"This can't stop at the first grade," he says. "Once we have shown children that it is fun to learn, there must be continuing development at other levels."

Some of this development will come under the federal aid to education program recently passed by Congress, which centers on aid to poor children.

Also, Richmond says, "we must think about a year-round program. When we do this, there is a space problem. And also teachers, because this summer we are using teachers from public schools primarily.

"But we feel that if the money is available, communities will use their ingenuity to solve the space problems. Also, we will fund training programs to help supply the demand for trained teachers we are creating."

Head Start programs are as varied as the 50 states and 2,600 communities they will operate in. In Philadelphia, the city school system will operate in 300 centers, including 100 schools.

In addition to parents, high school students will serve as voluntary workers, bringing children to and from the centers, escorting them to medical and dental appointments, taking children to visit museums, zoos, parks, take part in creative play and help collect toys and equipment.

In Concord, Calif., parents will help complete a detailed family health history and receive nutritional information. Pictures will be taken of the children and their activities. Mirrors and tape recordings will be used to help the child become aware of himself as an individual.

In San Diego, Tex., 90 per cent of the children are Mexican-Americans and 85 per cent come from families whose income averages $1,500 per year. Emphasis will be on teaching English. The teachers will use television sets, records players, motion pictures, even wading pools.

In Ashe County, N.C., the board of education will hire teachers who will visit 25 children whose homes are so isolated they can't go to school. The itinerant teacher, and an aide, will bring to each home the arts, crafts, games, rhythms and stories used in Head Start centers. Parents also will be shown how to use community medical services and how to prepare food and will be told of community services available to them.

All these teachers, professional people and volunteers have heeded the call issued last February by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

"Great skills are not needed to reach these children," she said. "Only what all of us can give: Patience, kindness, and a few hours of our time to start their minds growing. There is no more important task in our communities than for such children to hear a voice say: 'Come, take my hand.'"

Can Restore Confidence

New Faces For Jailbirds Seen As Emotional Boost

LANSING, Kan., (AP) — "I always cursed this face of mine," said the big man. "It bugged me so much it seems I couldn't stop thinking about it."

The man, 31 years old, has been in the Kansas State Penitentiary for four years. He was sentenced to 11-35 years for grand larceny and burglary with explosives.

Once in heavy construction work, he now talks of becoming a salesman when he is released.

He no longer is appalled when he looks into the mirror.

Dr. John Simons, a 32-year-old plastic surgeon, carved a new face for the man by removing pockmarks and refitting his loosely hanging skin.

Dr. Simons, senior resident in plastic surgery at the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, has been reshaping inmates faces at the rate of two or three a week. He has the enthusiastic support of state prison officials and — particularly — the prisoners.

One inmate, 54 years old, lost his thumb and part of the index finger while working on a prison refrigeration compressor. Dr. Simons made him a new thumb. "It's the most dramatic operation I've done so far," says Dr. Simons. "I detached the index finger and moved it over. With the loss of the thumb, half of the use of the hand is gone. Taking an index finger away does no damage."

The prisoner, serving 1-7 years for forgery, proudly showed it off, still swollen and not fully healed, but already usable.

"This is far beyond any hope I had," he said, carefully touching thumb to the three remaining fingertips. "I'm a commercial refrigeration man and that will be my life when I get back on the street. I won't be a cripple begging for work. I'll be able to work at my trade with the best of them."

The object of the surgical program, of course, is to remove one more barrier to rehabilitation.

"Conceivably a facial disfigurement — A misshapen nose, large flapping ears — could be the emotional upset that pushes them over the line," says Dr. Simons. "We don't know, of course, if pinning the ears back will keep a man out of trouble."

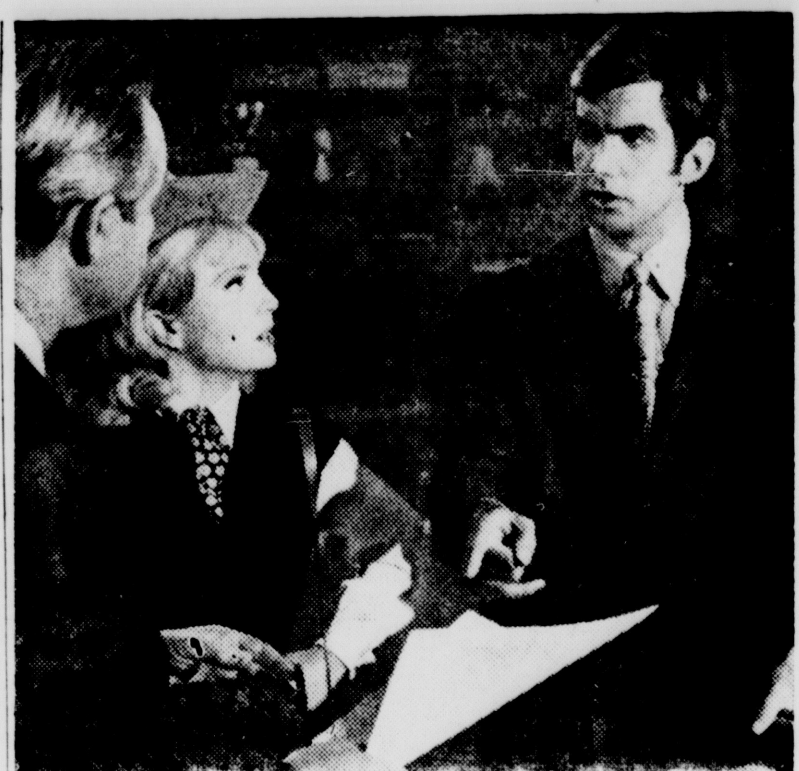

Nile Von Holten, offering meditation and prayer was presented by Mrs. Frank Pahlow, stewardship secretary. Spring conference convention report was given by Miss Ruth Heisterberg.

Mrs. Eldon Schlesselman, president, presided.

Plans were discussed for visiting Butterfield's Boys' Ranch, near Marshall. The annual July congregational picnic was discussed. It was announced the Central District convention of ALCW will be Sept. 22-23 in Lincoln, Neb.

The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

Hostesses were Mrs. Ernest Kettner, Mrs. Ken Melton and Mrs. Roger Fjeld.

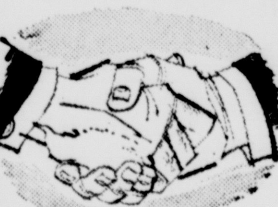

Susan Oliver listens as an angry George Hamilton tells hard-to-convince Arthur O'Connell that he wrote the new song which they have submitted to the music publisher in this scene from "Your Cheatin' Heart." The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, also starring Red Buttons, tells the dramatic and moving story of the late country-western singer Hank Williams, one of the most popular natural entertainers of his time. Filmed in Panavision, it features ten of Williams' greatest song hits. Coming Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday at 50 Drive-In Theatre.

effect on a man, bound to have an effect socially.

"When a man comes in here, he lacks something and we have to try to determine what it is. It may be education, a vocation or religion. Or it may be the inability to put on a good appearance in public because of some facial deformity that has caused him to withdraw."

"In penal work, every time a man comes through the door you have a new problem. It may be that his looks are that problem. If our hope is in changing the outlook of the inmate — and it is — we may have part of the answer."

Sacajawea To Scouts

Girl Scout Camp Needs Improvement

New Ownership Responsibility Faced By Group

By RALPH JONES

The Missouri State Legislature settled, this session, the question of ownership of the 32-acre tract of land near Sedalia used for many years by the Girl Scouts.

The tract belongs to the Sacajawea District, Heart of Missouri Council, Girl Scouts of America, for as long as the tract is used for scouting activities. In case the tract is no longer used for scouting, the title reverts to the State of Missouri.

Some apprehension over the ownership of the land arose last year, when an easement was sought across the land. Investigation showed the land actually was owned by the State, having been purchased many years ago as the site for a proposed correctional school for Negro girls. The school was never built, and in the early 1940s the Girl Scouts began using the land for camping purposes.

The area was first known as the girl scout camp, then the scouts named the area Camp Sacajawea, in honor of an Indian scout that accompanied the Lewis and Clark expedition into this area. The scouts made some improvements over the years, while the actual ownership of the land remained unquestioned.

When the easement was sought and state officials became aware of the state's ownership, it was determined the state had little use for a 32-acre tract of land in Pettis County. During the last session of the Legislature, a bill to sell the land was drawn up, and then Representative Tom Keating was selected to introduce the bill.

On introduction, the bill met with considerable difficulty, as hundreds of scouts and their parents, along with residents of the area, objected to the sale. They wanted the area to remain a Girl Scout Camp. The Legislature adjourned and became a phase in history, and the bill to sell the land died.

In this session of the Legislature, Representative Joe Rains of Pettis County introduced a bill to sell the land to the Girl Scouts, at the price originally paid for the land, $3,800. This measure passed, and the land actually became scout property.

Now, the Pettis-Benton County area must raise $3,800 to pay for the property, and make needed improvements to modernize the camp. Scout officials indicate a considerable amount of work has been done, through personal contact, to raise the money. The scouts receive some money through the United Fund, by the color guard and the pledge of allegiance. The ceremony is repeated when the flag is retired in the afternoon when the camp closes.

BROWNIE UNIT—Outings at Camp Sacajawea, near Sedalia, under the beautiful old oak trees and with hikes along the trails marked in the dense woodland of the camp are a major activity of Girl Scouts, Intermediates and Brownies in the Pettis-Benton County area. Above, a Brownie unit enjoys a cool drink as they begin their day of activity. (Democrat-Capital photos)

OPENING CEREMONY—Each day the first activity is the raising of the flag. The ceremony includes formal presentation of the flag

MAIN BUILDING—This is the largest building on the camp grounds. It has one major drawback, however. Users report the roof leaks.

The building is used for storage of equipment, as a shelter in case of rain, and for meetings.

NEED REPAIRS—Because the camp did not belong to the Girl Scouts, no work, other than general maintenance, has been done. Needed are new concrete tent foundations to replace the worn-out wooden foundation in the foreground. Scouting officials are planning to make the necessary improvements, with the help of Pettis-Benton County residents.

Soviets Like It

Serving American Culture Generously to Red People

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet people are getting their richest helping of American cultural fare in years, despite the current low ebb of Soviet-U.S. political relations.

Denunciations of U.S. policies in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic in recent weeks have had no visible effect on the import of American artistic works.

American pianist Van Cliburn and the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra have had expansive, open-armed receptions from audiences all over the country in recent appearances.

Long lines of Leningraders stretched for blocks to look at the cultural exchange exhibit "Architecture U.S.A."

One of the liveliest showcases for American artistic works is the theater. Among the most talked about productions of the current season has been the Moscow Satire Theater's adaptation of J. D. Salinger's "Catcher in the Rye." Western residents here felt the classic story of young Holden Caulfield had been handled with great sensitivity.

American jazz has made what looks like a final breakthrough in recent weeks. It is played day and night on radio, television and phonographs that blare forth on hot summer nights from the open windows of Moscow apartments.

Louis Armstrong recently appeared in a film clip on Moscow television for what was believed to be the first time in Soviet history.

Old American movies — the Western, "The Magnificent Seven," "The Toast of New Orleans," with the late Hollywood tenor, Mario Lanza; and the musical "Oklahoma" have been playing to packed houses.

An unusually large number of American movies have been chosen for out-of-competition showing at the Moscow Film Festival next month. Among them are: "Bridge on the River Kwai," "My Fair Lady," "To Kill a Mocking Bird," "It's a Mad, Mad World."

The experimental theater on Moscow's Tanganka Square put on a lively production of "Ten Days that Shook the World," the account by American journalist John Reed of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution. The show has been hailed here as a completely new theatrical phenomenon — an avant garde melange of vignettes employing modern dance, shadowgraphs, and musical accompaniment.

Other American plays are still playing to sell-out audiences. They include: Arthur Miller's "View From the Bridge," and "The Crucible," William Gibson's "Miracle Worker" and "Two for the Seesaw," and an adaptation of John Steinbeck's "Winter of Our Discontent."

There is talk in theater circles of staging next season Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" The play has created sensations in Prague and Warsaw that reached all the way to Moscow.

Young choreographers in Leningrad's Kirov Ballet also are trying something new with a ballet adaptation of John Steinbeck's story "The Pearl."

Modern American writers — Steinbeck, Salinger, Hemingway, F. Scott Fitzgerald, and others — are scheduled for publication this year in Russian translation.

Savage Is Out of TV War Series

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Twelve O'Clock High" has a new commanding officer, a young acting veteran working on his fifth Oak Leaf Cluster for television series.

You may recall in our last chapter that Robert Lansing, who played Gen. Savage in the wartime Air Force series, was being dropped from the cast. Some say it was because ABC, which was shifting the show to an earlier hour, figured the younger audience couldn't identify with a general. Lansing's explanation was that he left voluntarily, since he feared the series would be less adult next season.

Whatever the reason, Savage will go down in flames on the first segment of the show in the fall. I mean literally. His plane will be shot out of the air by another B17 manned by a German crew.

Enter Col. Joe Gallagher, played by New Orleans-born Paul Burke, 38. He already is familiar to the series fans.

"I played on the first show of the series — I was a captain then," explains Burke. "I was promoted to major on the show, then I came back later in the season and did another one as major. In the first show next season I get promoted from lieutenant colonel to colonel after Savage dies."

Rice Year Is 1966

ROME (AP) — The council of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization has designated 1966 as "International Rice Year." Noting that about half the human race makes rice the daily staple food, it said the idea is to encourage governments and individuals to make concerted efforts to promote rice production, trade and consumption.

Burke, who was an enlisted man in the infantry after World War II, may hold the record for number of television series. He played a veterinarian in "Noah's Ark," Barry Sullivan's assistant in "Harbor Master," and undercover agent in "Five Fingers." Each lasted only a season, then he served three years in "Naked City." That one nearly did him in.

"We shot the series, mostly on New York streets, six days a week," Burke recalled. "Usually we had two nights of shooting, sometimes three or four, often lasting all night. The company was actually like a combat outfit. Once my doctor made me go to bed for 30 days because I was so exhausted."

"I'm a product of television. Sure, I'd like to be on the big screen or on the big stage. If those chances come, fine. Meanwhile I'm glad to be doing a series, and I expect to do others in the future, too."

June Evening Ceremony Unites Joyce Dickson, Delbert Kaiser

At six o'clock Sunday evening, June 20, Miss Joyce Elaine Dickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Dickson, Route 1, Smithton, exchanged wedding vows with Mr. Delbert Ray Kaiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt Kaiser, Route 4, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Before banks of palm leaves and huckleberry entwined seven branch candelabra at the altar, the Rev. Walter F. Strickert read the double ring ceremony. Two vases of white gladioli and white carnations highlighted the palm background.

Mrs. Wanda Schreiner, organist, played "O Perfect Love," traditional selections and wedding marches. Miss Alda McMullin, accompanied by Mrs. Schreiner, sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Wearing empire styled aqua peau de soie gowns, Miss Bonnie Deuschle, Route 3, Pilot Grove, and Miss Nova Turner lighted candles. Their wrist corsages were of blue and white carnations.

The bride's father escorted her to the altar and gave her in marriage. Her white bridal gown, which she made, was styled with fitted under bodice, and a scalloped neckline. The skirt of bridal satin had a lace overskirt and a small pleated train fell in the back in straight lines to the floor. Long sleeves tapered to wrist points. Pearls on white satin secured her illusion veil. She carried white carnations, accented with carnations in white, touched with aqua. The cascade arrangement was tied with satin streamers.

Miss Carol Dickson, Route 1, Smithton, was honor assistant for the bride. Miss Norma Jean Kaiser and Miss Dorene Kaiser, Saginaw, Mich., sisters of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Their floor length gowns were of aqua peau de soie and empire styling. The overskirts were slit to the knees. Necklines, cut to "V's" enhanced the bodice design. Their white gloves were above elbow length. Matching peau pillboxes held their aqua illusion veiling. They carried flowers in harmonizing shades.

Mr. Kenneth Kaiser, brother of the bridegroom, stood at the altar as best man. Groomsman were brothers of the bride, Mr. Floyd Dickson and Mr. Glen Dickson, both of Independence. Ushers were Mr. Raymond Barklage, cousin of the bride, and two cousins of the bridegroom, Mr. Ronald Flenner and Mr. Joe Kabler.

A dotted Swiss frock in white, with floor length hemline, was worn by Miss Wanda Pritzel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Pritzel, Cole Camp, who preceded the bride down the aisle, strewing flower petals in her pathway.

Wedding bands were borne to the altar by Master Gary Kabler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kabler.

A crepe dress, patterned with yellow and orange on white was worn with matching accessories by Mrs. Dickson. Mrs. Kaiser chose a lavender brocade dress with accessories to blend. Their corsages were in complimenting shades.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts to 150 guests at their home following the wedding. A flower theme of white carnations and gladioli was used. Serving refreshments were Mrs. Joseph Kabler and Mrs. Ronald Flenner.

Reluctant Farewell To TV Set

WEST SHOKAN, N.Y. (AP) — Maybe I'm fickle, even ungrateful. Certainly this time last year I was happily boasting that television had me hooked; that I, alone on my wind-swept mountain, found companionship and solace in so many television offerings that sometimes my total viewing ran to 30 or 40 hours a week.

Now I'm reversing myself. Television has done me wrong and except for news, Danny Kaye and very special events, I'm mournfully bidding it farewell. That is because my best-loved programs are no more, or soon will be.

Gone is "The Defenders," the series about a father and son team of lawyers with consciences. Call it messianic if you like, but I enjoyed the fact that "The Defenders" had an undeniable point of view and yet never developed a formula. I found myself getting a new perspective on law and even justice. It was well written, well directed and well acted.

"Profiles In Courage" also had a message, and one intelligent friend of mine found it dull. I, on the other hand, looked forward eagerly to the true tales of American men and women who risked everything for ideals. The list I keep of good people grew appreciably because of that series.

Of all my losses, perhaps the saddest is "That Was The Week That Was," not because it always hit a bull's-eye but because it kept officialdom, news gatherers including television itself, and all stuffed shirts a little uneasy about what it might lampoon next. Also there was that extraordinary manual pantomime of the Berlin wall by Burr Stiltrom, which won the Peabody Award.

Both pupils and parents were among those who disagreed with me about "Mr. Novak," the story of a school and some special teachers. They said there are no Mr. Novaks in real life, but I say there should be. If ever the world needed teachers who care, the time is now. As for the parents in the weekly presentations, I meet their like all the time — utterly blind to their children's needs and what is happening to them. Any concerned teacher would stack up well against them, though I am certainly not saying that all parents are as bad as many that I know.

Instead of picking all my favorites to eliminate, why didn't they take off some of the medical programs, which, by their graphic portrayal of symptoms and operations, make me more of a hypochondriac than I am already? Why couldn't they have fewer of these screaming, maniacal bop and pop programs for the young? Surely there can't be that many young. For that matter, why don't they abolish some of those endless game shows that make adults behave like kindergartners? I'll tell you why. Ratings! And my dear departed couldn't make the grade.

While I'm at it, I might as well recall that last year I confessed to an addiction to certain soap operas. They haven't disappeared but I've given them up, too, because they have ceased to be about the kind of human beings I recognize. In fact, I doubt that some of the characters are human at all. I long for the days of "One Man's Family" and "Vic and Sade," who talked as people I knew best did. But probably if they came back, they, too, would be filled with German spies, drug addiction and alcoholism.

Do you suppose it could be that I'm old fashioned? Anyway, I'm going to miss television.

Miss Nancy Kay Marcum Marries Mister George Edward Flutwood

Gowned in traditional white, Miss Nancy Kay Marcum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marcum, Sweet Springs, became the bride of Mr. George Edward Flutwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flutwood, Annapolis, Md., at two o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 19, at First Christian Church.

The double ring ceremony was read by Dr. Harry Purviance before an altar setting of pink gladioli, white chrysanthemums and ivy. Candelabra were entwined with small white chrysanthemums, green leaves and pink rosebuds. White satin streamers marked family pews.

At the organ, Mrs. J. W. Watts played "Salut D'Amour," Elgar; "Traumerei," Schumann; "Because," d'Harlelot; "I Love You Truly," Bond; "O Perfect Love," DeKoven; Wagner's Bridal Chorus and Mendelssohn's recessional.

Mr. Larry Marcum, brother of the bride, lighted candles.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was a long sleeved lace over silk taffeta with empire line in the front. The aisle wide train fell from the back waist. A cluster of seeded pearls held her veil of illusion. Pink rosebuds and ivy were carried by the bride.

Matron of honor, Miss Beverly Higdon, Sedalia, cousin of the bride, and Miss Phyllis Karte, Pilot Grove, another cousin, and Mrs. Teddy Bock, bridesmaids were dressed in matching creations of pastel pink silk taffeta. The dresses' high bodices were styled with scoop necklines and above the elbow sleeves. Circling the waists were narrow bands of embroidered silk. The floor length sheath skirts featured slender bell shaped over-skirts, secured at the back waists with small flat bows. Flat bows also held their short veils. They carried pink roses.

Best man was Mr. Jerry Palmer, Sedalia. Groomsmen were Mr. Kenneth Flutwood, Annapolis, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Jim Funk, St. Louis, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Miss Debbie Hemme, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hemme, Sweet Springs, was flower girl. She wore a floor length dress of silk organza over silk taffeta. Her veil was held in place by a wreath of roses. She wore white slippers and gloves with her costume.

Master Mark Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson, Cole Camp, served as ring bearer.

The bride's mother chose a dress of blue silk with lace overblouse, with blue and white accessories. A pink and white whipped two piece dress was accessorized with white by the mother of the bridegroom. Both mothers were presented with corsages of pink gladioli.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in fellowship hall of the church. The refreshment table was covered with a hand crocheted cloth over pink. It was centered by a traditional three tiered wedding cake, flanked by silver candelabra, entwined with white chrysanthemums and tiny pink rosebuds.

Those who served were: Mrs. Betty Funk, St. Louis, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Mary Lou Flutwood, Annapolis, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Nannette Yancy, Sedalia.

Mrs. Darrel Becket, Columbia, presided at the guest book. Gifts were received for the couple by Miss Sandi Bennett, Sedalia.

For travel, the bride wore a navy blue dress with navy and white accessories. Her corsage was of roses from the heart of her bride's bouquet.

The couple is at home at 522½ South Barrett.

Rulers Head For Added Neutrality

ALGIERS (AP) — The new Algerian regime, in the opinion of Western diplomats here, is moving toward a more neutral position in world affairs coupled with an anti-Communist policy at home.

This can have a wide effect on political relations among the nations of the African-Asian community.

It can lead many nations to take a new look at the "second Bandung" summit, now scheduled for Nov. 5.

Cheif Belkacem, minister of education and information in the new regime, served notice of the switch in domestic policy in an interview with the official newspaper.

Belkacem put it this way: "We have known strange professors who, incapable of achieving the revolution in their own countries, pretend to be doing it here, according to plans which have nothing to do with Algeria."

"We have put them aside. We do not want them as guides. They are free to go where they wish, but not to indoctrinate our youth."

Col. Houari Boumedienne's regime has expelled a number of French, Chinese and Egyptian Communists who acted as advisers to deposed President Ahmed Ben Bella.

Two correspondents of the Paris Communist paper L'Humanite also have been expelled. On the other hand, Fidel Castro in Cuba and Sekou Toure in Guinea have issued statements attacking Boumedienne. Castro called Boumedienne a "military despot, a rightist, a reactionary, and an enemy of socialism and the Algerian revolution."

Boumedienne's military regime ordered Prensa Latina, the Cuban news agency, to close its Algiers office Thursday because it distributed copies of Castro's speech.

Toure praised Ben Bella and said he hoped Algerians will avoid a "Congolization" of their country.

This points to closer relations with French-speaking states of "black Africa" which refused to attend the Afro-Asian session as originally scheduled here June 29.

It also points to better relations with Algeria's neighbors in the Arab world, Tunisia to the east and Morocco to the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Moran, 3220 South Washington, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Mr. John Theodore Mergen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mergen, Route 4. The marriage is planned for July 17.

Wants Amendment Included In Election

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The inclusion of a fourth Constitutional Amendment in the Aug. 17 special election has been requested, according to Melville B. Martin, chairman of the St. Louis County Pension Request Committee.

Martin said Thursday he made the request of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. The proposed amendment, one of seven approved by the General Assembly this year, would permit establishment of pension plans for county employees.

Already included in the special election are proposed amendments on legislative reapportionment, industrial development bond issues and gubernatorial succession.

Argument Ends In Death For Youngster

CARROLLTON, Mo. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy was shot to death during an argument with his brother at their home in Bosworth, Mo., Thursday.

The victim, Percy C. Walton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Walton, was shot in the head with a .410 gauge shotgun.

His 12-year-old brother, Richard, was placed in custody by Robert Bryant, juvenile officer, and held for investigation.

The boys were the only ones at home at the time of the shooting, Sheriff Paul Johnson said. The father, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, is superintendent of the Bosworth schools, and Mrs. Walton is supervisor of the Bosworth antipollution program. They also have a daughter, Donna.

Moderate Upswing

Cuban Economy Is Brighter As Farm Production Rises

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba is beginning to enjoy a moderate economic upswing, due mainly to increasing agricultural production.

It has been under a strict food and consumer goods rationing since 1961 when agricultural and industrial production started dropping as a consequence of the nationalization program of the revolutionary government and the inexperience of the young revolutionaries and Communists in running a country.

As soon as the Communists took firm control of the revolution they proceeded to change the bases of the economy from agriculture to heavy industry following the orientation of such ardent Marxists as Ernesto Guevara. In 1961 Guevara undertook an ambitious industrialization program destined to give Cuba a heavy industry within five years.

Agriculture was neglected. Under the now publicly acknowledged "wrong impression" that sugar was the tie that kept us under American economic control," as Fidel Castro and Guevara have explained, many cane fields were razed amid efforts to diversify agricultural production.

As a result the production of sugar and food fell sharply. The ambitious industrialization plan bogged down from the beginning and consumer goods vanished from the market.

In several cases factories were built in places lacking adequate water and power or enough manpower.

In other cases, factories were built for products which could be imported more cheaply. Raw materials for the factory were as expensive as the finished imported product.

There was also a woeful shortage of technicians and skilled manpower.

The government now says that the main mistake was "to have tried to mechanically copy from the experience of other Socialist countries."

In agriculture the process of confiscation of all farms larger than 130 acres, accomplished at maximum speed between 1961 and 1963, cut the production of food.

Productive and well run private farms were turned to state administrators without experience.

Most of the livestock was killed including thousands of milk producers. The resulting food shortage, especially of meat, milk and grains, just now is being eased.

In 1963, the food and consumer goods shortage reached critical proportions and sugar production fell to 3.8 million tons.

Castro acknowledged that the industrialization program had failed and proclaimed that agriculture was still the economy's main base.

Lands that the government had taken over were divided into state farms of manageable size, which at the same time were consolidated in regional areas producing a determined product.

New administrators trained in technical schools were appointed.

To increase milk and meat, new grazing lands were planted, and cattle were imported from Canada.

The industrialization program lured thousands of workers from the fields. This resulted in an acute manpower shortage at harvest time.

To help ease the shortage the government launched a mechanization drive with Soviet-made machinery, especially in the sugar cane harvest.

The women also have helped in the harvesting of many crops such as tomatoes and other vegetables and cotton.

The most important result has been the high sugar production reached this year, 6 million tons. Sugar supplies 85 per cent of Cuba's hard currency.

A third of the crop will go to the Soviet Union as payment for oil, industrial equipment and raw materials. Other Communist countries including China will buy at least another third leaving almost two million tons to be sold in the world market.

Although world market prices are low, this will enable Cuba to have dollars to import necessary transportation, industrial and agricultural equipment.

The expected increase in the sugar exports will help to ease the balance of payments deficit, set at $290 million for 1964.

The tobacco crop this year is also expected to increase. The government refuses to supply any details claiming any information is classified.

Staple food crops such as bananas, black beans, rice and vegetables were higher in 1964 than in past years. There have been bumper fruit crops in the last of

A Time to Try Men's Souls

July 4, 1965 comes midway in a year whose first six months have been a period of crucial testing of the fiber of this nation and whose remaining months undoubtedly hold still more severe troubles in store for us and the world.

It is, as Dickens said of an earlier year, both "the best of times and the worst of times."

At home, economic expansion continues apace, but the affluence it creates reveals in starker contrast than ever before the material and spiritual poverty in which millions of Americans still live.

Each gain that has been made in social justice promises greater unrest in the future and shows how very far we have to go before all Americans can partake equally of freedom and opportunity.

Abroad, more new nations breathe the heady atmosphere of independence, and more fall prey to political and economic chaos and the tug of war of competing ideologies.

In Viet Nam, real war goes on at an accelerating pace, bringing both hope that it must end in the best and fear that it leads to the worst.

It is not only the times when there are clear-cut choices and unmistakable calls for sacrifice that try men's souls, as Thomas Payne wrote. This period of ambiguous crises and shadowy possibilities through which we are moving, of undeclared wars in which American soldiers die in handfuls at a time, is in some way even more difficult than if we were faced with actual massive attack upon the life of the nation.

For many Americans, international uncertainties engender fear and distrust of the awesome military power we possess and a desire to retreat into what historian Henry F. Graff of Columbia University calls "neoisolationism."

For others, the disruptions and demands of social evolution at home breed disillusionment with the American system, suspicion of neighbor and a longing to return to an individualistic independence that never existed.

But America can neither abdicate its position as leader and defender of the free world, no matter how undesired and hazardous and costly that role may be, nor can it wish away the domestic challenges brought on by growing population, technology and changing human needs.

It is the best of times and the worst of times. It is a time to try our souls. It is also the beginning of the 190th year of the independence of the United States of America.

Touch of Freedom

FINDING THE WAY 'Happy Fourth of July'

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

No one has ever wished me a "Happy Fourth of July." There would be sense in the greeting for this is the birthday of a nation which insists that the pursuit of happiness is an inalienable right of the human being.

The trilogy of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" is heresy in a totalitarian state.

What is the version of happiness America offers to mankind on this anniversary of its founding?

The pursuit of happiness is dependent upon the pursuit of righteousness. In the end, happiness is a profoundly moral problem. The happy persons on July 4th are not those who are doing just what comes naturally. Happiness is not just tickling the fancy. Happiness is the by-product of vocation.

The happiest people are those who have strengthened their country because they have acted in response to their fundamental faith in God's love and concern.

They live in a country which protects this freedom to respond. Thus, it is no slip of the tongue to assert that the inalienable rights of man are life, liberty and the pursuit of righteousness.

There's always the difference between seeking after righteousness and preening ourselves with self-righteousness. We Americans have been humiliated and are not feeling very self-righteous. We live in a world which questions us about our vaunted freedoms and asks us whether we really mean what we say we mean.

Yet America's strength is in recognition that while we have many tough and unsolved problems, we also believe that they can be solved. We act in the arena of responsible freedom.

There is an old story about a boy who was flying a kite beyond his line of vision. He was asked how he knew that there was a kite on the string. "Oh," said the boy, "I can tell by the pull of it."

Pursuing righteousness is believing that there is a moral law, and even when the possibilities are outside of one's vision, still feeling the pull of it. This is the quality of character which protects and preserves freedom.

It is this goodness which is the rootage for the tree called happiness. On this important national holiday we pledge our faith that man has these inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of righteousness. Therein is his happiness.

Let me wish you "A Happy Fourth of July."

Frankfurt New Haven For 'Beats'

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — British beat groups and Liverpool-sound merchants have taken German teen-agers by storm and shaggy Britishers by the hundreds are making a living here they can't make at home.

Unable to compete in England with the Beatles, the Rolling Stones and other hit-parade groups, dozens of British groups have invaded the dance halls and inns of German towns and villages.

Inevitably, the British beat cult has brought out a crop of German imitators with names with a British flavor — like "Die Lords" — but German pop singers have a hard time. German teen-agers give the Britishers places of honor in their hit-parade charts.

For German teen-agers, the next best thing to a top British group, it seems, is any British group.

A London agent who caught wind of this development has been packing them off in droves to Germany. Scores of them roll up to the dance halls in their little buses, unload their electric guitars and amplifiers, and start the kids to jumping. Some of the groups, on their own confession, never played professionally before they came to Germany, but here they make 600 to 1,000 German marks a performance ($150-$250).

German teen-agers don't care what sound they get, as long as they get their dose of British beat music from a genuine, long-haired, Beatle-jacketed British beat group.

The kids show their appreciation by joining in with the words, applauding frenetically, and shouting "more" — in English.

"England is just for holidays now," exclaimed Pete Burns, 19, drummer with the Deacons, a British group now virtually at home in the Frankfurt area. His colleague, vocalist Johnny Dean, 22, elaborated: "Back home the scene is all choked up. There are too many groups. But here it's wide open."

But the competition is some-

THE WELL CHILD

Patience Is Treatment For Bedwetting Problem

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

A reader asks whether there is any new and effective treatment for bedwetting. The key to the treatment is still patience and understanding. Overemphasis on toilet training in children under three years of age defeats its purpose and may result in a persistence of bedwetting well beyond this age.

It is estimated by different observers that 5 to 50 per cent of all older children who are bedwetters have a disease of the kidneys or bladder. For this reason a urologic examination should be made to rule out such a cause.

Bedwetting is often blamed on a behavior disorder when the truth is that the behavior disorder is the result and not the cause of the bedwetting. If an organic disease can be ruled out, imipramine given under careful medical supervision may aid in training these unfortunate children.

Q — I have packed some baby things in naphthalene mothballs. Now a friend tells me not to use the blankets because the naphthalene would be absorbed by the baby's skin. What do you think?

A — Naphthalene is a deadly poison when it is swallowed. Since babies sometimes suck their blankets, this would be a source of danger. Skin contact would cause only a mild skin irritation and possibly some eye irritation as well. Exceptions are babies under two weeks old in whom a severe anemia has been known to follow skin contact with the crystals.

Another exception is the occasional hypersensitive baby who would get a severe skin burn from such a contact at any age. Since naphthalene is volatile the blankets would be perfectly safe if they were well aired or washed before being used.

Q — Suddenly about four months ago my 2½-year-old son began to refuse vegetables and fruits which he had always eaten before. Our doctor prescribed a tonic but it hasn't helped. What should I do?

A — At some time in their first two or three years most children exhibit this type of behavior. If you don't make a big fuss about it and let him skip the vegetables and fruit for a few days, he will surprise you one day and eat them again. Insisting that he eat them at this age may really turn him against them and then you will have a real problem.

Meanwhile continue to offer the vegetables and fruit he liked best along with some new ones. Make sure that he is allowed to eat in quiet pleasant surroundings without the distractions of other people in the room.

Rubber Band Flipper

By Polly Cramer
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY — My suggestion is for girls who like to browse through magazines at the beauty shop or at the pattern counter in a store. Carry a rubber band in your purse and when you are tempted to moisten the tip of your finger to turn a page, just wind the rubber band loosely around your finger tip and turn the pages with ease. This is more sanitary. — ELSIE

DEAR POLLY — Nobody likes a soggy sandwich. To prevent this, I buy plastic milk bottles for dolls at the dime store and fill them with mustard, mayonnaise and catsup and put them in my husband's and children's lunch boxes. When they are ready to eat, they open the desired bottle and apply the desired condiment at that time. The "empties" are put back in the box and carried home to be washed and used again. — JACKIE

DEAR POLLY — Every wash-day I count the number of loads of laundry I have done and put the amount of money it would have cost to do them at the coin laundry in a bank that I made out of a plastic detergent bottle. This is the way I am paying for my washing machine and I also have money immediately available for repairs while I enjoy the convenience of a laundry right in my own home. — MRS. K. Z.

Renewed Indefinitely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Authority of Ozark Air Lines to operate the four routes for which it had a temporary certificate has been renewed indefinitely by the Civil Aeronautics Board. One route is Kansas City to Chicago.

The new authority extends to all intermediate points on the routes except Kirksville, Mo., on the Kansas City-Chicago route. The board said it would review the question as to whether Ozark's authority to serve Kirksville should be renewed. An examiner had recommended renewal.

Also to be reviewed is a proposal that Ozark be granted a new route between Des Moines and St. Louis by way of Ottumwa, Iowa, Kirksville, Quincy, Ill. — Hannibal, Mo., Moberly, Mo., and Columbia, Mo.

Review briefs can be filed until July 29.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR: 332,812 Losers.—New Hampshire has just announced 332,812 losers. These are the persons who paid three dollars for a lottery ticket on next Sept. 4's sweepstakes race, and came up with a big, round, fat goose egg for their wasted money.

Of course, New Hampshire is not publicizing this long list of in-state and out-of-state losers. Instead it is concentrating on the 522 persons—the one out of every 639—who drew tickets which will eventually pay their holders as yet undetermined sums.

Naturally, it sounds much more inviting to say that 522 persons were winners. But it is part of the turned-around world of gambling that one considers a thimbleful of winners more important than a stadiumful of losers, even though in a moral sense all are losers.

We continue to find it sad that an American state—above all a supposedly frugal Yankee state—could have joined the ranks of those deluded areas which believe that they can solve problems by creating new ones. Indeed, there is something inexpressibly shameful in a public entity deluding the public into hoping to get something for nothing. (According to these particular odds the average player would have had to have begun buying a yearly ticket in the year A.D. 1326 to have had a chance to win.) We hope that there will be an adequate

Chinese Preach Low Budget Revolution

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The State Department has prepared a significant, confidential memo on Red China's intensive drive to penetrate Africa, Latin America and Asia in competition with Soviet Russia.

The report is not available for publication, but this column can reveal that it shows China to be doing an amazing job of propagandizing, subverting and distributing foreign aid on a very low budget.

Chinese rivalry with Russia bears out Bernard Baruch's long-range advice to Harry S. Truman that history would show the United States and Russia on one side with our eventual enemy "The Chinks."

The State Department memo shows that in some countries China has made great progress by furnishing little more than pamphlets and movies on guerrilla warfare, but that in the emerging nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America these documents are read as scripture by revolutionaries.

To the more promising trouble spots, the Chinese send "technicians" and "cultural attaches," skilled in revolution. Chinese subversive training camps have been set up, for example, in Algeria, the Congo, and other African countries.

The revolutionary training of Africans is directed by Chang Hsi-Jo, who formally heads the cultural commission's foreign relations, and by Liu Chang-Sheng, whose official title is Secretary General of the Chinese-African Friendship Association.

Instructors are trained in Peking's Marxist-Leninist Institute, which is one of Red China's most elite schools. The instructors are known to have taught guerrilla warfare and subversive tactics to revolutionaries from Algeria, the Cameroun Republic, Colombia, Cuba, Kenya, Laos, Mozambique, Niger, North Viet Nam, to Peru.

Mao Tse-Tung's agents are working like hornets in Africa, the Middle East and Latin America, partly because these areas are least populated and provide a potential overflow for China's dense 700,000,000 population.

Secret Military Activity
From every pressure point on China's border, intelligence reports tell of ominous military activity. The Chinese are stepping up their agitation from South Korea, to Thailand, Malaysia and Burma, whose terrain and proximity make them vulnerable to Mao's style of low-cost guerrilla warfare.

A Thailand liberation front has already been opened in Peking, and is stirring up trouble for Thailand through several front organizations inside the country.

Ominously the Chinese have also just opened a Palestine liberation front which obviously has been created to organize guerrilla activity among the Arabs against Israel.

Though little has been said about it, Mao has also been building a network of military roads that point like daggers at almost all the free nations on his frontiers. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese, working night and day with muscle alone, are hacking their way through jungle and over mountain.

State Department experts conclude that Mao, while avoiding open warfare with the United States, is doing all in his power to create trouble for us around the globe.

Tankers To De Gaulle

Here is more on the interesting Air Force sale of our supersonic tanker, the KC-135, to France despite U. S. policy of opposing the proliferation of nuclear weapons and the means of delivering them.

It can be revealed that originally the Air Force turned down the French proposal to buy KC-135's. Then the French began dickering in London to buy Valiant tankers, intimating they would just as soon take their business to the British.

Boeing then came back to the Air Force and pointed out that French purchase of American tankers would bring a little French gold back to the U.S.A. At this point, the State Department OK'd the KC-135 deal.

These huge, fast-flying tankers are necessary to supplement the new French Mirage bombers calculated to deliver nuclear weapons over Moscow. The Mirages use up so much fuel getting off the ground that they cannot fly far without being refueled in the air.

My Fourth of Julys

Looking back on the Fourth of July

When I was a little kid,

I wonder how I ever survived

With all of the things that I did,

The day started early, I just couldn't wait,

Those firecrackers to untwine,

And the mess in the yard of little red scraps

Was nobody else's but mine.

Once I fell off the porch on the scraper for shoes

And I screamed and cried from the fall,

My folks were certain I was badly hurt

But I was just scared—that was all;

Now the Fourth of July was a very big day

And our yard was the center spot.

For between my house and my granddaddy's house

There was a big vacant lot

It was kept like a park, with flowers in the back.

And there, at the end of the day

Was where the neighbors pooled fireworks they had

In a really glorious display.

It was Granddaddy's show, and nobody else

Was allowed to participate.

For he didn't want any accidents—

And the kiddies could hardly wait:

The neighbors and friends all gathered there

The porch, by twilight, they'd fill,

They sat on benches and on the steps,

Banisters and window sill,

It was a great moment watching the lights

Shooting up toward the dark sky.

And certainly nobody else, I know

Could have been more enchanted than I.

With a sparkler sending out little stars

Held in my hand as I gazed,

Too close I got it to my little skirt

And at once my flimsy dress blazed,

And I'm sure I wouldn't be here now

This story to tell about

If a man standing near hadn't been quick

To grab me and smother it out.

And there was the day after Fourth of July

When some burned Roman candles I found,

I broke them in two, saw more powder there

Which I dumped in a pile on the ground.

There were matches about, dropped the night before

So I lit the powder — and wow —

I'm certain that God had His hand on me

Or I'd be a blind woman now —

It singed off my lashes and singed my brows

And burned the front part of my hair,

It blew up in my face and gave to me

A never forgotten scare.

So now I look back on the Fourth of July

And I'm grateful as I can be,

With the narrow escapes on those days I had

That nothing had happened to me.

93 Attend Class of '50 S-C Reunion

The private dining room at Holiday Inn was the scene of the reunion of Smith-Cotton High School Class of 1950 June 19. Smorgasbord dinner was served after cocktails.

Invocation was given by Rev. Norman Withaus. The school song, "Hail Alma Mater" was sung with Dorothy J. Anderson luchs at the piano.

Mary Alice Sheffield Flores, chairman, gave welcome, then presented to Mrs. Thelma Cook, class sponsor, the centerpiece, a bouquet of yellow flowers in a black vase, the school colors. Joe Benson, S-C principal in 1950, telephoned from Hawaii with regrets. He was on naval reserve duty in Hawaii.

Mrs. Flores then introduced Tom Miller, master-of-ceremonies. Miller, with an "auctioneer" fan fare, told a few jokes on some of his fellow classmates when they were 11 years of age and asked each class member introduce himself and give an outline of his life since graduation.

Honors went to Shirley Shoe McClary and Dale Whitfield for changing least.

Bill Franklin was presented a gift for traveling fartherest, more than 1,600 miles from Rhode Island. Evelyn Lane Hampton received a gift for having the most children, five, and Dorothy Pierce Kell for having been married the longest, 15 years.

Then Mr. Withaus conducted a memorial service for those in the class who had died, Anna Lee Dotson, Kenneth Neidholdt and Tiny Young, and for J. Wiley Atkins, class sponsor.

It was voted to hold the next reunion in 1970 instead of waiting until 1975 as previously planned. Miller appointed Joan Walker, Mrs. Flores, Kay Lambirth Lukacs and Jeanne luchs to make arrangements.

Miller thanked Mrs. Flores, for her planning; Joan Cummings Walker for name tags which were photographs taken from the 1950 annual; Mrs. Lukacs for table decorations; Jeanne luchs for the welcome poster. He thanked the Walker Publishing Co., for the first letters sent to 169 class members, and Ideal Printing Co., for the second reminder. Carl Zimmer-schied was thanked for his taped recordings of popular songs of 1948, 1949, and 1950.

Miller presented Ralph Walker, who read letters from those who could not attend.

Another old school song, "Sed-ville Will Shine" was sung, then resung.

The remainder of the evening was spent in conversation by the pool and dancing on the patio. Music was furnished by Carl Zimmer-schied's taped music of the 1950 class' favorite and popular songs of that time.

Ninety-three guests signed the gold and black guests' book.

Continue Sedalia Growth 'Probe'

"What do we want?" questioned Dr. John Lamy at the Chamber of Commerce membership meeting Wednesday morning. "Is it growth or do we just want an all around good town?" Then he added, "There should be some spearhead organization for a program of improvement and it should be the Chamber that coordinates it."

"Sedalia has nothing to be ashamed of," stated Kenneth A. (Bob) Klamert, general agent for the Missouri Pacific Railroad. "and sometimes I think there is too much criticism." Klamert, who has lived in Sedalia for two years, stated that in traveling around over the state he has found towns all have about the same problems, political fights, trying to get industry — trying to do things. Sedalia, he said, is ahead of a good many towns. It has the State Fair, a good park system, and one of the finest things he has found is the swimming pool, he said.

"At this swimming pool, there is a family plan which certainly means a lot to people with sizeable families. My family has already gotten the worth of the $20 cost and we still have the summer ahead."

As far as industry is concerned, Klamert said he would like to see a heavy industry, which he thinks will mean more than a group of smaller industries. The Missouri Pacific will do all it can to help get such industry but it is up to the town to help. A heavy industry would help everybody.

"A small town certainly has its advantages. There may be certain disadvantages," he continued, "perhaps not the entertainment that can be found in a larger city, and that might be where the criticism comes from people who come here from the city. But," he said, "if they don't like it they can go back to the city. This is a real nice place to raise a family, but what are they going to do after that?"

The Junior College is still in the mill, said George Ray, first vice-president of the Chamber, someone added that the Jaycees plan to renew efforts in the fall. Someone else then pointed out that the Jaycees, they noticed in the paper, had heard several speakers on industry.

William O. Hiatt, Jr., district gas engineer for Missouri Public Service Co., said that he came to Sedalia nine years ago, and he had a choice. He was attracted by the school system, the park system and thought it was a nice size town in which to raise a family. There have been some disappointments, he said, but the real good points of the town far overshadow the disappointments. "I am real happy here, but I can't understand why we have a jail that has been condemned since the 1800's and why there is not whole-hearted support of the agencies in the United Fund."

Dr. C. D. Osborne said that the jail was condemned when he came to town first in 1922. He left about a year later and moved back in 1932. Lawyers, he said, at times had wanted him to go there to see someone whom they represented who needed his services but he said: "I flatly refused. They had to bring them to another part of the building. It made me sick to go in there, that place is unsanitary. I wouldn't keep a hog there."

Dr. Osborne said he was greatly disappointed when the fire station bonds were voted down, "because the town does not have adequate protection and, also, that the police pension plan was rejected because a good police force is necessary to give a sense of security in a time of increasing crime." The Chamber and the newspaper could do much to educate the people, he said.

The issue for new fire stations should not be voted on at the present time, said John C. McCloskey, lawyer. Once the water power is duplicated in two lines and the insurance code is passed as an ordinance, the last step will be the re-location of the fire stations for which bonds will be voted on. This should never come with a political election, but issues on all bonds should be voted on alone.

The fire code must be adopted and the water program, which is ahead of schedule, someone pointed out, before we can go to the people and say that with these two things required by the Underwriters, and the new fire stations, we can bring the insurance rates down ten per cent over-all and in some areas, like Southwest Village, the cost reduction will be even greater. We are just out-of-date, said McCloskey, these are things that are required by the Underwriters and have been met by other towns.

It just isn't true that Sedalia can't pass bond issues, McCloskey continued, for we have passed them, but the longer we delay on things that need to be done the greater the cost is going to be.

Clinton Black, who has been in Sedalia 16 years, and has seen a lot of changes in the town in those years, agreed, and suggested that if they had a definite program on what all the projects would cost, he felt the people of the town would be more interested in going ahead with plans for improvements.

Dr. Osborne, who had not seen the Hare and Hare plan, said he felt a mall down Ohio Avenue would be a great asset to the downtown area, and to this Yates explained that this is in the Hare and Hare suggestions. It is being planned, and this will be financed by downtown property owners, but it will take a little time.

Hare and Hare recommended one way streets for the downtown area said Martin Goodrich, manager of Montgomery Ward's. This would not cost anything and certainly would help a great deal. Goodrich pointed out that where no money is involved, it seemed that some of these things could be started now, perhaps under the direction of the directors of Chamber divisions for such programs.

He pointed out that the sidewalks and curbs on many of the streets in the downtown area are in very bad condition. This, too, is something that should be taken care of by the property owners. "We could do a lot in this town if we really wanted to," said Goodrich, but attitude and effort are real important to getting things done.

One-way streets downtown are one of the first things suggested in the Hare and Hare survey, said Carl Yates, Jr., president of the Chamber, and it wouldn't cost a thing.

Some of the public buildings around town should be fixed up, said Kalo Eichholz, a general contractor, and among them he pointed out is Broadway school. Public buildings that are not kept up, he stated, certainly make a bad impression on people coming in or going through a town.

A number of buildings have been renovated, there are new fronts, and things like that catch on, said Yates. He told of the 15 minute film being produced for the Chamber. Looking at the raw footage, he said, it is excellent, and when it is completely processed and with narration, it will be something that may be shown with pride, it will be a real tool for an industrial man, and will be shown to civic groups and any organized group wanting to see it.

Dr. Lamy felt that the hospital facilities were adequate at the present time, that while there were times when it was necessary for patients to be in the halls, these are exceptional times, and usually there are enough beds. However, he said, he felt future growth of the area would require larger facilities.

Of the town, Dr. Lamy summed up the feeling of the group at the meeting, that they did not really want a city, they just wanted a good middle-sized town.

Goodrich said that didn't mean the town shouldn't grow, if a town doesn't grow, it slips back, he said, we don't want that. What we want is a town we can be proud of.

These meetings are by invitation to the membership in alphabetical order of business firms or individuals, however they may be listed. Yates stated he was keeping a scrapbook of the articles which had appeared in the newspaper about the meetings and planned to take the suggestions and ideas from all of them for a program.

SARGENT SHRIVER: Fireworks
in a Gray-Flannel Package

What Freedom Means to Me
By JOHN H. GLENN

Sargent Shriver: Fireworks in a Gray-

He's an Ivy League aristocrat married to a Kennedy—but he drives himself like a boy fighting his way out of the slums; here's what makes Sarge run

SARGENT SHRIVER, head of the Peace Corps and Poverty Corps, recently returned to Canterbury, his old preparatory school in New Milford, Conn.

I went along to cover his speech and talk to some of the teachers of his youth.

As we strolled under the lovely old trees lining Canterbury's walks, Shriver remarked that he would like to see his old room. I couldn't help but comment that his wish was certainly a sentimental one, and people back in Washington didn't usually think of him as such.

Shriver frowned: "It's an excess I have to control. I can't permit myself to be as sentimental as I really am. It might interfere with the way I think and the way I work."

In these words, he summed up an attitude that has shaped his life—and made him one of the busiest and most important officials in Washington.

A holdover from the Kennedy administration, Shriver was personally chosen by President Johnson to run the incredibly complex Poverty Corps program. The reason was simple. Shriver, now 49, has tackled every job in his life like a bulldozer plowing up a mountain. He is relentless; he gets jobs done.

His daily schedule is one that makes even hard-working Lyndon Johnson blink. He sleeps only three or four hours a night. By 5:30 a.m., he is on the phone calling sleepy members of his staff, driving them as hard as he drives himself. He is in the office promptly at 9 a.m. and often has lunch at his desk.

Although Shriver is without cabinet status, he sits in on cabinet meetings. And although he has never held elective office, he has so impressed Congressmen with his efficiency as an administrator that, despite their tendency to haggle over foreign-aid funds, they have given the Peace Corps all the money it needs.

"The secret of Shriver's success," says Harris Wofford, associate director of the Peace Corps, "is that he's a man of ideas and of great practicality."

A motto in Shriver's office reads: "Nice guys don't win ball games." He told me: "I put that up when we started the Peace Corps. I didn't want the Corps thought of as some kind of sweet, tutti-frutti government agency."

Shriver's hunger for new jobs and goals is part of his inheritance. Members of his family pioneered in settling Maryland. His father was involved in state affairs as a vigorous champion of social causes. Even as a child, Sarge (as friends call him) seemed to realize that hard work was part of the family tradition. He frequently cautioned his nurse to remind him to come in from play to study!

A group of Peace Corps Volunteers meet their boss, Sargent Shriver.

His father was a banker, and Sarge grew up in a house graced with servants, a chauffeured limousine, and other trappings of affluence. But the Depression of 1929 wiped out the incomes of both his parents. The family's style of life changed drastically—and this no doubt had a profound effect on young Sarge.

The family never made a financial comeback. And although they managed to pay Sarge's way through Canterbury, there were not enough funds to send him to college. So he went through both Yale University and Yale Law School on scholarships.

At Yale, Sarge had a heavy schedule—and thrived on it. He worked in the college library. He edited Yale's daily newspaper. He was chairman of the Junior Prom committee, a busy member of the prestigious Scroll and Key fraternity, and a familiar figure at elite debutante balls.

"He was a ladies' man," his brother Herbert recalls. He had so many girls in those days that his family was worried that he might marry before graduation.

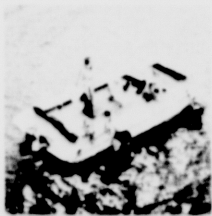

After law school, Sarge worked for a while with a New York law firm. Then came World War II. He volunteered for the Navy and saw action in the Pacific. Peace took him back to New York and law, but he soon decided that he was not deeply interested in having a legal practice. "I don't just want to make money," he told his mother. "I want to do something for people."

Not quite certain of how to achieve this goal, he tried his hand at journalism. It was his job as an assistant editor of Newsweek that led him to his connection with the Kennedy family.

At that time, Joseph P. Kennedy was seeking advice about whether his son Joe's war diaries would make a good book. His daughter Eunice suggested Shriver as the right man to evaluate the diaries. She had met him at a cocktail party—and had been impressed.

Sarge studied the diaries. Then he bluntly told Kennedy that they would not make a very good book. The matter of the diaries disposed of, Kennedy asked Shriver a question that changed the course of his life: "How would you like to work for me?"

Sarge said yes, and soon he was off to Chicago to become assistant general manager of the Merchandise Mart, then the world's largest commercial building. Kennedy had just bought it.

But there were other Kennedy interests, and before long Sarge was in Washington assisting Eunice in her juvenile-delinquency work. He stayed 16 months. "Juvenile delinquency wasn't the only thing that kept me," he says.

Eunice and Sarge became familiar figures on the Washington social scene. But her capacity for hard work probably interested him as much as her beauty and her social grace.

"I was greatly impressed to learn that she worked in a penitentiary," he recalls. "Some people belittled it by saying she was rich and could afford to be charitable. But think of all the rich women who do nothing but develop neuroses."

It took Shriver seven years to get Eunice to marry him. "It was hard to break through the Kennedy phalanx," he told me. "It seemed impenetrable. None of them was married at the time. The four sisters—Kathleen, Jean, Pat, and Eunice—did things together and wanted no outsider to break it up. After Eunice and I finally married in 1953, Jack promptly followed suit, and the others did so later. But I had to break through first.

"If Eunice hadn't married me, she probably never would have married; we have great respect for the single life of dedication. I pity childless couples, though. Their lives are so empty."

Today, at Timberlawn, the Shriver farm near Rockville, Md., it is a familiar sight to see Sarge walking with his five-year-old son Timmy or playing on the lawn with Bobby, 10; Maria, 9; or Mark, 1 (Eunice Shriver expects another baby this month).

The Shriver family enjoy a marriage of equal partnership—a free-wheeling relationship in which the wife is no clinging vine.

"Eunice," Sarge told me, "is the most strong-minded, intelligent woman I know. She has the same kind of critical mind that her father has and her brother Jack had. She also is the closest you'll ever come to seeing Jack again. She has the same facial bone structure, the same gestures, the same voice rhythms, even the same sense of humor and restless energy."

For Sarge, Eunice and the children are his main contact with warmth and affection. Shortly after President Kennedy's assassination, he told a friend: "I'd rather be with my kids just now than with anybody in the world."

When he comes home at night carrying two or three briefcases of work, the kids always grab him for a few minutes of roughhousing before he disappears into the library. But although they know their dad can be a lot of fun, they also know he can be a strict disciplinarian. When the roughhousing gets out of hand, Sarge will suddenly say, "Thank you, we've had enough." And that's that.

Sunday is Sarge's day for the family. The conversation at dinner is likely to range from how to get the children to drink their milk to the history of volunteer service in America. The youngsters always join in with bright chatter.

One day after young Bobby had refused to do a chore, Sarge began a lecture with "When I was your age, I used to . . ." But before he could finish, his son countered: "When Uncle Jack was your age, he was President!"

Marriage to a Kennedy brought Sarge quickly into the political arena. He worked full-time for JFK in the 1960 presidential campaign and was of great importance in recruiting such talented men as Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara. It was not until January, 1961, however, that he himself received an appointment—as the man detailed to organize the Peace Corps, a program that Washington pundits predicted would be a fiasco.

Sarge expected JFK to help launch the Corps, but the President told him: "It's your baby." Shriver went to Congress on his own, introduced himself, and almost singlehandedly sold his idea to the legislators. It was almost as if the President wanted to test Sarge to see how he would make out without the assistance of the White House.

A good deal later, Eunice was visiting the President, and he asked: "How is Sargent getting along with the Peace Corps?"

"Fine," she replied. "No thanks to you." JFK burst into a grin.

Like John Kennedy, Shriver enjoys getting on with a job and bristles at criticism (his war-on-poverty program has had more than its share of this). But like Kennedy, he has learned patience. The President's death seems to have changed him in this way.

When news of the assassination reached Washington, Shriver was placed in charge of the funeral arrangements. He tackled the job, determined that everything would be in impeccable taste. He stayed up through the day and night of Nov. 22, overseeing every detail. He even went to the trouble of having the White House electricians line both sides of the road leading up to the front door with lights. When Jacqueline Kennedy returned from Dallas, he wanted everything to seem warm, not cold.

"You've had no sleep, Sargent," warned his mother, who had come to Washington immediately upon hearing the news. "You must promise me to get some sleep."

Sarge nodded, but as he worked through the night and the next day, he brooded over the President's death and God's purpose. Finally as the funeral cortege wound its way toward Arlington Cemetery and Shriver's last chores were finished, he resigned himself to the bitter irony of Jack Kennedy's life and death.

"You work as hard as you can, and then you have to have faith," says Sargent Shriver today. "I've been so lucky. And those who have must give."

Shriver, a man of great gifts, is determined to share them. ♦

An Independence Day Message:

What Freedom

Editors' note: This article is excerpted from an address Colonel Glenn gave upon receiving the George Washington Award for patriotism from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa.

MANY OF YOU will recall with me some of those disappointing mornings at Cape Canaveral when everything seemed "ready for launch"—and then a flight cancellation was suddenly announced.

Once, the decision to cancel a flight that I was involved in was made on the grounds that (1) the height of the waves in the recovery area was just at the maximum and (2) cloud cover at the Cape was barely acceptable.

I did not want to "scrub" the flight that day, but I was overruled. That evening, in retribution, I went to town and made some purchases. The following day I presented to operations director Walt Williams, the man who had made the decision, a pair of rose-colored sunglasses (for viewing weather conditions) and a tape measure with each foot relabeled to include three normal feet (for measuring wave heights in the recovery area).

Lest I be misunderstood, Walt's judgment was good—the fact that I am still here attests to that. And from this vantage point in time, I realize that he was absolutely right in what he did.

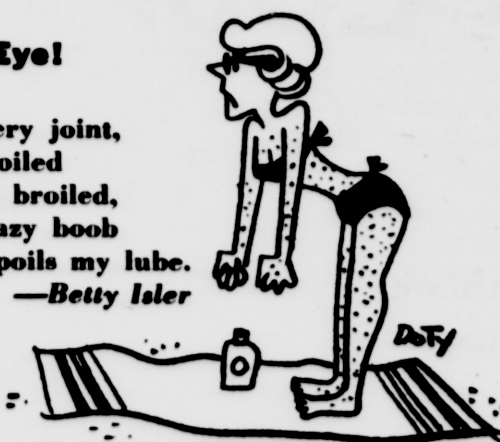

Safeguards can be exasperating—but they are necessary exasperations. And that is true in affairs of government as well as in space exploration. Complete freedom with no responsibility is hardly our objective. Our American democracy is really "freedom with a high degree of individual responsibility."

Means to Me

Freedom needs to be qualified because complete freedom is only another phrase for anarchy. The kind of freedom we have in this country is not that absolute freedom.

A friend of John Adams once remarked that: "Man is born with a desire for freedom."

"Yes," replied Adams, "but so is a wolf."

The founders of the United States knew what they meant when they used the word "freedom." They felt that true freedom was obedience to moral laws. Lawful freedom, they said, was the right of decent men, governed by conscience, to make their own principal choices in life. This certainly was a long step in giving individuals control over their futures—a centuries-old dream.

Our experiment in democracy and self-government is only 189 years old—a mere blink in the eyes of history. But the eyes of history have seen America begin with the idea of giving to every man an equal chance and relying on the thesis that the majority, properly informed, would be capable of making proper decisions to shape its destinies. That the thesis is correct is obvious.

Yet there must always be guidelines for us to follow. Such things as ideals, religious beliefs, pride, patriotism, standards, all are intangible principles that have gone a long way toward making this country what it is. These areas require no new understanding but only a rededication on our part to their principles—for they are no more old-fashioned today than they were in 1776.

If we chart the rise and fall of other civilizations, we find that ideals, far from being impractical, are the very heart of survival of our free American way of life.

Every great society which came into being and long endured did so on the basis of convictions and beliefs so strong that they lifted individuals out of themselves and caused them to live, and sometimes to die, for aims and purposes nobler and better than themselves.

The fabric of this nation's growth—of its success, its glory—was woven in belief: belief in God, in the individual, in liberty, and the concept of personal rights and, equally important, personal responsibility.

In the weightlessness of space flight, an object turned loose in the cabin will drift until it hits something, bounce off and assume another course, react to air currents, and rebound again. It reacts to any influence because it lacks the purpose and stabilizing influence of the force of gravity. We do not want weightless citizenship.

In the words of Carl Schurz: "Ideals are like stars; you will not succeed in touching them with your hands. But like the seafaring man on the desert of waters, you choose them as your guides, and following them, you will reach your destiny."

God bless America. Give us strength always to stand fast for those things which mean most in reverent, resolute, responsible patriotism, proudly and willingly working that the nation shall be better that we have lived here. Not one of us is above the other; we are beside one another, standing fast in the faith that made men free. ♦

The patient returned to the doctor to complain heatedly about the diet he had been given. "Why, I feel worse than ever, Doctor," he moaned. "Now I don't even enjoy the cigars, desserts, and snacks you said I mustn't touch."

The racket became unbearable, and the mother called out to her children playing in the yard: "Jane, stop that screaming and yelling. Why can't you be nice and quiet like Johnny?"

"But, Mommy," the little girl replied, "that's part of the game. He's Daddy coming home late, and I'm you."

Frog Murders Bass

So Many Giant Catches Outdoor Life Published 4-Page Article Featured on Front Cover —
Sports Afield Ran 6 Pages — Fur-Fish-Game 6. On Radio, on 200 TV Stations.

BY PAUL STAG—The Weekend Fisherman

A frog stumbled on by accident by Bill Plummer, a New England Fisherman, catches such giant bass for him . . . so many bass, so often . . . so fast it has changed his fishing life . . . and for others who use his frog . . . experts . . . average fishermen . . . beginners . . . even children . . . it murders bass. Here's how it can for you.

The Secret Of Catching Bass

For 22 years Bill Plummer fished bass the hard way . . . but studied their habits . . . how they love weeds . . . and devour every frog they can get.

Finally Bill tested simulated frogs of every color, shape, size and material he could find . . . but even perfect replicas when motionless were so unnatural in water as to prove useless. Every lure Bill used . . . even so-called "Weedless" ones . . . fouled or snagged in weeds . . . until he invented his own weedless hook . . . diagram below shows why.

Then he found the answer . . . he combined a sponge rubber body and long trailing, thin triple-jointed hollow rubber legs with his weedless hook. This frog changed Bill Plummer's fishing life and can yours. Here's how.

Twitches Of Rod Drive Bass Crazy

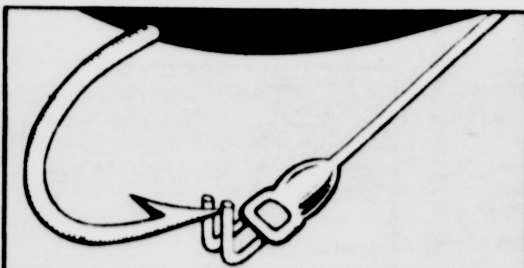

Bill rushed with his frog and his weedless hook to the nearest weed covered lake. Once cast, the frog sat with just its eyes above water. When Bill twitched the rod tip, the frog's legs kicked backward in exact imitation of the real thing.

Before Bill could give a second twitch, something green, black and white blew the pad apart to get at the frog . . . Scratch one bass.

Here was a lure that looked, acted moved . . . felt so natural to bass it proved irresistible. Bill could make it sit motionless on a pad . . . move s-l-o-w or fast . . . on or below the surface. With a twitch of rod tip he could make it look frightened, hurt . . . anyone could do the same.

He could move that lure through the heart of weed "jungles" as safely as if it lived there.

Bill Plummer sculptured one body after another out of sponge rubber to get the precisely right shape, size and weight for perfect casting . . . worked on hook arrangement to get perfect weed guard action with positively no interference with the hook after the strike . . . solved the problems of action and buoyancy . . . tested powers of his frog.

Why Frog Casts Safely Into Thickest Weeds

1. "Side arms" extend down on either side of hook point . . . eliminate "open gap" usually found at hook point on weed guards.
2. Bulb deflector "hops" frog over stumps and branches.
3. Resilient flexible wire keeps guard aligned, wards off obstructions. Weedguard holds U.S. Patent No. 2,789,387. Guard deflects instantly during strike . . . does not interfere with hooking.

Frog Irresistible To Bass

Bill could show anyone in five minutes how to use the rod with his frog.

He'd inch his frog ahead . . . suddenly sweep forward . . . make his frog slip quietly off the pad into the water . . . race across the moss . . . looking terrified —and the bass struck without caution.

Bill would make his frog dart . . . jump . . . dive . . . struggle in water as though drowning . . . jump temptingly along the surface. He'd catch bass when his buddies would come home skunked. With his frog, Bill began to catch all the bass he wanted . . . throw back all bass under four pounds . . . in New England before his frog Bill rarely caught bass over four pounds. Now he began to catch bass twice as big as before. He was able to fish in places huge bass hid. He'd boat and release bass after bass.

One Fisherman Tells Another

After newspapers wrote two and three column stories of the Frog, after magazines wrote multi-page articles on it and radio and TV interviewed Bill about it, thousands of fishermen wrote Bill about his Frog—forced him to quit his job as flying instructor . . . just to manufacture frogs for other fishermen.

From all over reports came in of astonishing catches . . . bigger, more bass caught than ever before . . . fishing in weeds made easy as a game . . . even for beginners for whom it was frustration before.

"Best all-round surface lure I used." —"Weedguard superior to any on market"—"Since my first frog more than doubled my catch of big ones'."

Bill's frog worked for more and more kinds of fresh, even salt water fish. Proved sensational in rock quarries for small mouths. Underwater the frog proved extremely effective.

What This Means To You

Simply this. No longer need you helplessly fish edges of weeds, when bass are not venturing out . . . waste untold hours fishing countless acres of barren water . . . lose valuable tackle in weeds you're not equipped for . . . be content with puny bass, with a fraction of your limit or even getting skunked simply because you can't safely go after bass in shelter of weeds, pads and moss.

What Frog Did to Bill Plummer

1. Creel census men of Massachusetts Fish & Wild Life Commission sent photographs of his catches to papers who published Bill's picture and 2 and 3 column stories.
2. Radio and TV Stations interviewed Bill about his frog's giant catches.
3. Outdoor Life ran a 4-page article on frog and Bill — featured on front cover. Sports Afield ran 6 editorial pages...Fur-Fish-Game ran 6.
4. General Motors filmed him using his frog, showed it on 200 TV stations.
5. Thousands of fisherman heard of frog, ordered it — forcing Bill into business and out of his job as flying instructor . . . then users reported fabulous catches using Bill's frog and method.

Catches Bass Twice As Big

Bill Plummer using frog below now catches bass like lunkers shown . . . on average twice as big as before.

U.S. Patent
No. 2,789,387
Weedguard

Floats naturally eyes just above water.

Guard deflects during strike . . . No hook interference.

Rugged Guard wards-off obstructions without bending.

"Bulb" feature "Hops" frog over stumps, branches.

"Side arms" eliminate "open gap" of old fashioned weed guards prevent fouling hook.

Flexible triple jointed hollow rubber legs give life-like reflex kicking action.

Now you can fish into center of weeds . . . over submerged logs, through matted bush, in underwater thickets, through weeds, grass, pads . . . make frog crawl . . . race . . . dive . . . sit motionless . . . dart away—use obstacles to help you that used to hurt you—overhanging branches . . . half submerged logs and rocks . . . moss and weeds so thick you can't see the water. Now you can catch bass as never before . . . bigger bass, more often.

Amazing Trial Offer

Try Bill Plummer's frog at our risk. Fish in worst weed trap area you know . . . where bass have been caught but you've been skunked or caught practically
